

No Volunteers From Essential War Jobs Wanted

Army and Navy Will Not Take Men Needed in Production Plants

Neither Will Men in Some Federal Agencies Be Accepted

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—The Army and Navy tonight formally announced they would refuse to accept volunteers who were deemed of greater use in their jobs in essential war industries and in federal agencies.

This was the second development of the day relating to the selection of fighting men. At a morning press conference, President Roosevelt expressed the opinion that the drafting of 18 and 19 year olds would not begin until after the first of the year.

The Army-Navy statement of policy said:

"Citizens occupying key positions in federal agencies and in a list of other occupations in war industry will not be accepted for commission or enlistment without first obtaining a written release from the head of the agency or war industry concerned."

Must Obtain Releases

Lesser employees in these occupations must obtain releases from their local selective service boards. It was stated. In cases of men not subject to the draft, individual decisions will be made whether releases must be obtained.

Adoption of the new policy reflected complaints that some industries were being crippled by losses of men to the armed services. Secretary of War Stimson took note of these complaints last week in stating that the War department was being "most careful" not to raid industry.

The new policy announcement said also that "except in furtherance of definite mobilization plans" no persons would be permitted to enlist and then permitted to retain their civilian employment on an inactive military status. Students in recognized institutions were exempted.

Industries Listed
The war industries and activities specified as essential were those included in a list of thirty-four broad essential activities compiled by the War Manpower Commission and published July 14 by the selective service.

This master list, the war department said, will be used by local draft boards in connection with problems of occupational deferment and by the United States Employment Service in determining what types of activities rate prior claim to workers.

In discussing the drafting of 18 and 19 year old youths, President Roosevelt said there was no need for legislation authorizing their induction before next year because the present law is bringing in about as many men as it is possible to train.

He added that he had been con-

Fortress Burns, Four Known Dead

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 12 (AP)—Reuters today quoted the Vichy news service as reporting an American Flying Fortress bomber crashed between Algiers, and Tarifa, Spain, yesterday.

The British news agency said the Vichy agency reported the bomber's gasoline tanks exploded and the machine burst into flames.

Four members of the crew were killed and were burned to death. The bodies were reported taken to Algiers.

The Vichy agency said the report was in a message from Algiers. The Vichy report also said the bomber was one of a group which recently arrived at Gibraltar.

Marines Start Repaying Japanese For Their Attack at Wake Island

WITH THE UNITED STATES MARINES ON GAUDALCANAL ISLAND, AUG. 24 (Delayed) (AP)—"We're started to pay them back for Wake Island," I was told today by American marines who occupied Gaudalcanal and Tulagi islands in the southeastern Solomons two weeks ago in the first stages of the continuing Japanese-American land, sea and air battle.

The marines, who since August 7 successfully have fought off one large landing attempt and numerous air attacks, reported they had found Japanese bodies rings and other possessions belonging to American marines who had been stationed at Wake Island.

Evidently these shock troops

HEROISM RUNS IN THIS FAMILY

Maj. Henry G. Thorne (left), of San Antonio, Tex., last U. S. Army pilot to leave Bataan, and Ensign George H. Gay, Jr., of Houston, Tex., sole survivor of Torpedo Squadron 8 in the battle of Midway, discovered that they were cousins when they appeared on a Los Angeles radio program, together.

3 OUT OF 25 MARINES ESCAPE SKIRMISH WITH SOLOMON JAPS

(Among the numerous bitter actions over the southeastern Solomon Islands when the marines invaded the area August 7 was that of a marine night patrol which established a beachhead far from the main American forces on Gaudalcanal. There were four officers and twenty-one men in this patrol and only three of the men survived the night's combat against an enemy superior in numbers. The story of the skirmish as told by a combat correspondent was released by Marine headquarters today.)

American Fliers Win Greatest Air Victory of War

Shoot Down 96 Enemy Planes in Battle over Guadalcanal

By CLARK LEE

AT SEA WITH THE UNITED STATES FLEET OFF SOLOMONS, Aug. 24 (Delayed) (AP)—The greatest air victory of the war against Japan has been won by American fliers who today shot down ninety-six enemy planes in a far-flung battle over Guadalcanal island and over our navy task force. Our losses were eight pilots missing.

In addition, and without loss of a single pilot, a small group of United States dive bombers and torpedo planes damaged a huge Japanese battleship of the Mutsu class, and a heavy cruiser.

Today's total was the largest number of enemy planes ever shot down by our fliers in one engagement.

The air fighting was the prelude in connection with the repulse of an enemy force of warships and transports which approached Guadalcanal from the northward. The presence of the transports indicated, in the words of a Navy communiqué, "that an attempt to recapture the shore positions in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area was intended."

Attack Beaten Back

(The Japanese naval counter-attack was beaten back by army "flying fortresses," carrier based naval planes, and marine and naval aircraft based at Guadalcanal.)

From the ship's bridge I saw our fighter pilots shoot down thirty-one planes and anti-aircraft downed twenty-four more in only ten minutes of terrific action. Those fifty-five were in an eighty-plane Japanese formation trying to attack our surface ships.

Fifty-five Jap planes plunged into the water trailing long smoke plumes, or exploded or disintegrated in the air.

Mussolini Muffed His Best Chance, British Declare

Il Duce Twitted for Failure To Take Possession of Sudan

LONDON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Twitting Mussolini for his failure to attack the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan with his far greater forces in 1940, the War Office commented today that "any Italian general who looks back at that must feel inclined to kick himself for the waste of those precious weeks."

Il Duce's costly procrastination at a time when he had 300,000 troops to throw against only 7,000 thinly spread Imperialists in the Sudan was related in a 150-page booklet, "The Abyssinian campaign."

"There was nothing to stop him sweeping up through the Sudan," the booklet said. "If he had only known it, resolute and co-ordinated attacks might have closed the jaws and Italy might have contributed Africa as Germany was contributing Europe to Axis spoils."

But the attack never came, and the British soon launched their own successful eleven-month campaign.

To rub it in, the war office placed on the back cover of its booklet an appropriate photograph—a bullet-shattered statue of Il Duce, his jutting chin and smooth pate shot away in the Ethiopian campaign.

Joseph F. Kaylor Heads Md. Forest Fire Departments

Calls for Volunteers in All Sections for Duration

Names Coordinators Including Sheldon H.
Burns of Cumberland

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Maryland State Forester Joseph F. Kaylor has been appointed state coordinator of the Forest Fire Fighting Service, national FFPS Coordinator David Godwin announced today.

Kaylor has also received approval of all forest protection agencies in Maryland, the State Civilian Defense Council, the regional OCD director and commander of the Third Defense Region, Godwin added.

Calls for Volunteers

Kaylor meanwhile called for volunteer workers to serve in the FFPS for the duration. Women, he said, were especially desired.

He said the state forestry service had originally consisted of 2,000 CCC workers and 3,000 regular forest wardens. All of the former and 1,000 of the latter have been lost by the service to the armed forces. The appeal for volunteers, he said, has been made to fill the gaps in the ranks of the corps.

The aims of the FFPS are to provide trained forest fire fighters for the state forestry service, with whom they will co-operate closely, to educate the people to their responsibility in the prevention and control of fires and to provide them with a chance of participating in the national war effort, enrolling as FFPS workers.

He outlined three duties for the FFPS members:

1. To assist in the prevention of forest, brush and grass fires, by educating their friends and neighbors as to the cost to the nation of fires, ways of preventing them and means of putting them out.
2. To participate in program of training other workers.
3. To help control forest and other fires.

Workers enrolling in the FFPS, Kaylor added, would receive a minimum of twelve hours training, but he added that previous education would be taken into consideration in deciding the length of training a volunteer would receive.

Gas for Volunteers

Volunteers are to receive a special emergency gasoline privilege, he added, which would allow them to receive emergency allotment of gasoline from any filling station in the state when they were enroute to a forest or other fire.

The filling station attendant, Kaylor said, would notify the state forestry office of the amount of gasoline delivered in each case and the name of the person to whom it was delivered.

The FFPS, Kaylor explained, will be quick by itself, Walter J. Quicker, who has been appointed assistant state coordinator, four district coordinators, nine divisional coordinators, twenty-three county or local coordinators and numerous wardens.

District coordinators include:

District 1, comprising the four western counties: H. C. Buckingham.

District 4, six northern Maryland counties: A. R. Bond.

The divisional coordinators include:

Div. 1, Garrett county, with seat in Oakland: Cecil Z. Ramsey.

Seat in Cumberland

Div. 2, Allegany and Western Washington counties, with seat in Cumberland: Urner Wigfield.

Div. 3, Eastern Washington and Frederick counties, with seat near Frederick city: Sheldon H. Burns.

Div. 8, Harford, Baltimore and Carroll counties, with seat at Aberdeen: Paul H. Seward.

Kaylor said the forestry school at Blue Ridge College formed a part of the FFPS training program.

Canadian Leader Wants Roosevelt To Rule English Speaking People

OTTAWA, Sept. 11 (AP)—W. D. Herridge, former Canadian minister to Washington, today urged that President Roosevelt be proclaimed supreme leader of the English-speaking people with the power of a dictator and with the advice of a general staff composed of the best minds in the British and American democracies.

Speaking before a luncheon club, Herridge said "Mr. Roosevelt must be proclaimed leader of the British empire, Mr. Churchill (Prime Minister of Britain) speaking on behalf of the empire, must declare that victory demands a leader for the English-speaking people and that that leader is the president of the United States."

Churchill needed the help of the people in taking such a step, Herridge said.

"To make the president of the United States and his general staff supreme over the strategy, manpower and resources of the British empire is an act unparalleled in history," he went on. "It is revolutionary. Whenever in democracy there is a revolution, the people are the leaders. Let the people of Canada begin to lead."

"This is no time for vain regrets. As a Canadian and a British subject I believe it is our duty to demand Roosevelt for leader. Let Mr. Churchill know what we demand,"

REDS ABANDON NOVOROSSISK, HALT NAZIS AT STALINGRAD

DIDN'T WANT TO SELL SCRAP, GOVERNMENT TAKES IT

After months of haggling over more than fifty tons of scrap metal lying around the farm of Ora Benjamin at Walled Lake, Mich., near Detroit, the government moved in and seized the junk to convert it into war materials. Junk men are pictured above as they loaded the scrap into trucks while Benjamin, seated, right, placidly watched. He was given the requisition price of $12 a ton. The farmer did not make clear his reasons for being unwilling to release the materials.

New Rubber Czar May Start Work By Next Monday

Roosevelt Will Name Man To Follow Advice of Baruch

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today that the new rubber czar would be named soon, probably on Monday, and that most of the recommendations of the Baruch committee which investigated the rubber situation would be put into effect simultaneously.

However, the nation-wide gasoline rationing is not expected to become effective until later, due to the necessity of preparing ration books.

Will Have Complete Power

In addition to rationing and other measures to reduce the mileage of the civilian motorist, the committee proposed the appointment of a "Rubber administrator, delegating to him full and complete authority in all matters related to rubber, including research, development, construction and operation of plants."

The report, submitted yesterday, added that the administrator "should be a man of unusual capacity, a thoroughly competent operating and manufacturing executive, preferably with experience in the rubber industry."

Reporters quizzed the president at today's press conference as to who the appointee would be, but received no indication. He is to be chairman of the War Production Board, after consultation with the president.

Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that he preferred to think of the new program as a tire and mileage rationing system and not as a gasoline rationing proposal.

Motor Reading Unlikely

There had been discussion, he said, of limiting mileage by periodic readings of each motorist's mileage meter. However, he added, it had been decided that too many drivers knew how to fix their meters.

The president went on to say that he had determined for himself that motorists are disregarding previous appeals to save tires by keeping to low rates of speed.

He recently drove his own car twelve miles along the Albany post road, at exactly thirty-five miles per hour. When he turned off at Hyde Park, twenty-two automobiles were

TWO KILLED, 47 INJURED, WHEN PLANE HITS BUFFALO BUILDING

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 11 (AP)—A flaming Curtiss-Wright airplane plummeted into the roof of a building at the Curtiss-Wright airplane division plant late today, killing two workers and injuring forty-seven others.

The pilot, J. Bertrand Purnell, 33, a Curtiss test flier since May, paraded to safety two miles from the plant. He suffered burns.

Names of the dead were not immediately available.

William Davey, general manager of Curtiss plants here, first announced about sixty workers were injured, but the figure was reduced later by the public relations office.

Emergency wards in six hospitals were jammed as fleets of ambulances brought the victims, several of whom were reported to be critically injured.

Davey said Purnell's plane caught fire "at a high altitude," from an unknown cause. Damage to the buildings into which the ship plunged was "very slight," he added, and production continued.

Purnell, who began flying in Philadelphia when he was 13, is a veteran, with more than 3,500 hours in the air. He helped found the Montgomery, Ala., School of Aeronautics, flew the first plane on the American Eagle Line between Omaha, Neb., and Wichita, Kas., and was an instructor at the Mississippi Institute.

Burn More Wood, State Forester Advises Public

May Have To Replace Coal and Fuel Oil, He Declares

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11 (AP)—Harking back to the days of World War I, the office of the state forester today advised Marylanders to think seriously of the possibility of replacing coal and fuel oil with wood for heating their homes this winter.

Officers of the forestry office reached into their archives and pulled out bulletins and pamphlets showing the relative heating values of different woods in preparation to issuing them to the public.

One pamphlet, published Feb. 15, 1918, gives pamphlets for burning wood gives a table of heating values and relates methods of preparing the wood for use, cutting it and marketing and distributing it.

Although green wood may be burned, it said, dry wood offers much more heating value. And while coal and fuel oil are convenient to handle, wood offers an advantage as a quick, hot fire. It also is useful, the booklet said, in heating churches, public halls, theaters where heating is only needed for short periods of time.

The pamphlet said hickory wood represented the highest calorific value with a higher equivalent even than coal. A cord of wood was given as having 115 per cent of the heating value contained in a ton of coal. A cord of hickory weighs approximately two tons.

A cord of either locust or oak has a higher rating than a ton of coal, while willow has the lowest rating with a cord of the wood generating only fifty-five per cent of that given off by a ton of coal. Virginia pine and tulip poplar also have low ratings.

Churchill needed the help of the people in taking such a step, Herridge said.

"To make the president of the United States and his general staff supreme over the strategy, manpower and resources of the British empire is an act unparalleled in history," he went on. "It is revolutionary. Whenever in democracy there is a revolution, the people are the leaders. Let the people of Canada begin to lead."

Russians Retreat From Seaport on Black Sea Coast

Stop Invaders West of Stalingrad for the First Time

Fight Furiously as Hitler Orders Victory at Any Cost

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Saturday, Sept. 12 (AP)—Russian troops defending Stalingrad under a "fight to the death" order were reported officially today to have stopped the Nazi tide in one of the greatest struggles of history, and the Red army of the Caucasus has abandoned Novorossisk on the Black Sea coast.

Courageously holding their ground under constant artillery and dive-bomber charges, the Red army west and southwest of Stalingrad beat off constant German infantry charges, destroying fourteen more Nazi tanks and killing hundreds of the enemy, the communiqué said.

Death at Russian hands was promised for any Red exhibition of cowardice in the epic struggle on the western bank of the Volga.

It was the first time the Russians had stopped the Germans west of the city after the Nazis really began moving in from that direction this week. The Soviets had withdrawn four times in the previous four days.

Launch Counter Attacks

Soviet troops even counter-attacked southwest of Stalingrad in one sector to throw the Germans "back to their initial positions" after several assaults had carried the enemy into Russian defenses, the communiqué said.

The Germans had claimed the capture of Novorossisk last Sunday. The withdrawing Soviet units apparently retreated into the mountains which sweep close to the sea between Novorossisk and Taganrog, sixty-five miles farther south along the coast.

Continued Russian success was reported at Mordok on the Terek river sixty miles west of the Grozny oil fields. Still fighting against German units which had crossed the river, the Russians were reported to have killed 2,000 Germans and destroyed ninety tanks in the last five days.

The communiqué reported a resumption of fighting on two sectors far to the north, the Volga river sector in the Leningrad defense area, and also west of Moscow. Several inhabited localities were captured in the Volhov region, and the Germans lost twenty-six tanks in an unsuccessful counter-attack, the Russians said.

West of Moscow several enemy strongpoints also were reported taken. But one of the biggest battles of

Hundreds of British Bombers Attack Duesseldorf on Rhine

By ROBERT BUNNELLE

LONDON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Duesseldorf on the Rhine lay pock-marked today in a pall of smoke left by hundreds of British bombers last night in the accelerating RAF offensive to cripple the supply centers of the German army.

The fifth attack on the city, the price was considered small compared to the fiery explosive destruction left in the metal, machinery and chemical industries. It was the seventh large RAF attack on the Reich in ten nights and the roundtrip carried the big, black bombers 600 miles through stout enemy defenses.

Other objectives which the air ministry did not name were at-

100,000 Fire Bombs Dropped

The air ministry said more than 100,000 incendiaries were dropped and they "did the work of the moon." The raid was the heaviest ever made by the RAF on a moonless night. Hundreds of searchlights threw a "wall of light" around the target city.

Flares and fires made the landmarks and factories conspicuous and one pilot told the air ministry Duesseldorf soon became a furnace. "Streets, buildings and the Rhine—everything stood out in the fires," the pilot said, "as we came away."

Officer Writes He's in Prison Camp in Japan

Lieut. Col. Potter Sends Message to Wife at Annapolis

By PETE ZURLINDEN
ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 11 (AP)—
"I am in the Zientau war prison camp in Japan. I have not been injured. I am well. I do not worry about me."
Those words, in a letter written on a single sheet of thin onion-skin paper, brought to Mrs. George H. Potter today the news she's been awaiting since last December 22—
the day the United States Marine Corps' heroic Wake Island garrison was captured by the Japanese.
They came from her husband, a marine lieutenant colonel, officially reported a Japanese prisoner last June. His letter reached Annapolis via the exchange ship Gripsholm, which brought American nationals home from Japan last month.

Parted Since November

Mrs. Potter, who hasn't seen her husband since last November in Hawaii, read from the letter:
"I am very anxious to hear that you are safe and well and that the baby is all right. Please try and cable me through the International Red Cross so that I will know that you are safe and well."

Mrs. Potter said all her letters to her husband had come back marked, "missing in action."
George Howard Potter, 3rd, adopted in Hawaii last November when 10-month-old, has never seen his father-foster. Nor does Potter know that he recently was promoted from the rank of major.

Other Officers Safe

Potter wrote that many of the officers who had been with him at Wake Island had been sent to prison camps in Shanghai. "But," he said,
"they were all O.K. when I last saw them."

He enclosed two snapshots taken while he was in camp. Mrs. Potter plans to have one of them, showing her husband and three others playing checkers, enlarged in the hope somebody may recognize the colonial's companions.

"The major," she isn't accustomed to his new title, "will be pleased when he receives my message."
Mrs. Potter plans to cable,
"George 3rd and I are at home and well—so is Flip." (Her husband's fox-terrier mascot).

Russians Retreat

this war and of history was the fight for Stalingrad.

Battle dispatches said the total armies involved exceeded the 1,000-000 men who fought on both sides in the battle of Moscow last year. They said, too, that the most powerful army that the Germans ever assembled in Russia, more than 500-000 men, 1,000 planes and many hundreds of tanks, had orders from Hitler to take Stalingrad, immediately, at any cost.

This, said the army organ Red Star, was revealed by captured German documents.

(The German high command said the attacking forces had penetrated to the Volga both above and below the city, and captured more fortified positions south of Stalingrad.)

The Russians' defense was based,
now, on the two Civil War orders which Joseph Stalin issued for the same city, then Tsaritsyn, in the 1918 battle against the White Russians.

Then Stalin sent all the Volga river vessels up the stream, removing the only means of escape.

"Now, as before," said Red Star,
"there is no way back from Stalingrad."

Death for Traitors

Red Star also invoked Stalin's stern 1918 measures to prevent desertions, quoting the Civil War order, "Every traitor, every coward, will find swift justice and death."

Offered no alternative save to hold Stalingrad or die, the Russians were meeting the newest assaults with their characteristic dogged resistance. They were fighting in a hideous cacophony of noise, with aircraft motors roaring in the sky, caterpillar treads rattling the ground, bombs and shells bursting in individual blasts which were indistinguishable in the torrent of sound.

Germans Reinforced

The Germans' assault army, accumulated gradually from the original quarter of a million men which crossed the Don elbow in August, continued to swell as fresh reinforcements were poured into the battle, constantly replacing worn-out units and increasing their numerical superiority.

Red Star said there had been no actual breakthrough southwest of Stalingrad in the last twenty-four hours.

West of the city, where the Germans appeared to be making their greatest effort, the noon communiqué said the Russians were fighting automatic gunners which had infiltrated their positions but this communique acknowledged no retreat.

There had been four previous withdrawals in four days on the west side of the city.

Marines Start

Thereafter the Japanese, who were cut off from their supplies, were unable to do much more than snipe at the marines until August 18 when they landed in force. The marines, however, cut them off in a coconut grove several miles from the airfield and wiped them out.

In addition to the 670 bodies you've seen in the coconut grove," General Vandegrift said, "some 150 more were killed attempting to swim away. Their bodies washed ashore and the Sealark channel and the Tenaru river were red with their blood. We believe no more than thirty Japs escaped and fled to the hills."

Attack Well Timed

It was evident our attack August 7 couldn't have been better timed.
The airfield and the island had just been completed and Japanese planes probably would have moved in within a few days.

The Japanese had completed construction of steel hangars, telephone and water systems, and had large quantities of heavy materials such as dynamo, steam rollers, and trucks.

Our marines are using all these materials. They also are eating Japanese rice, drinking Japanese beer and Saki, driving Japanese trucks, utilizing their gun placements, wearing enemy raincoats and smoking Japanese cigarettes.

Visiting the prison camp in the coconut grove, I saw some 300 prisoners of whom only seven were regular troops. The others were workers—small, scrawny and scared.
They have been surrendering in small groups since August 7, either through natives or by approaching marines with their hands raised.

Hungry Japanese Surrender
Both captured workers and soldiers said they were driven by hunger to surrender.

Two frightened Japanese emerged from the woods only fifty yards behind our parked plane this morning and surrendered to the marines who were eating breakfast. Simultaneously, marine sharpshooters knocked a Jap sniper out of a tree a few hundred yards down the runway.

The marines reported that the Japanese were using all the tricks of fighting they had employed in the Philippines.

The campaign here, however, differs radically from that in the Philippines in that we—and not the Japs—have control of the air and superior equipment and numbers.

Use Nurses as Decoys

The marines said the Japanese on Tulagi used Japanese nurses as human decoys. When the marines approached a hospital, a group of Japanese girls in white uniforms came out. The marines went over to them and Jap soldiers opened fire with machine guns from the hospital windows, cutting down both the marines and the Japanese nurses.

A typical Japanese trick that death only once resulted in the death of some twenty marines. A Jap major came out of the wood on Gaud-alcanal and reported that seventy soldiers wished to surrender. He offered to lead the marines to them.

The marines followed him into ambush.
Japanese frequently played dead,
then threw grenades when the marines were not looking. Others, their hands raised in apparent surrender, would throw small pellets of explosives when the marines came near them.

The marines aren't the least bit awed by the reputed fighting ability of their enemies. They said that with the exception of at Tulagi and Tanambobo the Japanese showed no signs of courage or intelligence.

Our marines, from the foot soldiers to the aviators, and from privates to generals, are the most impressive body of fighters I've seen in this war. Their organization is thorough and smoothworking. Their officers are real leaders who do not hesitate to make decisions and take the responsibility. Every man knows his job and goes about it in thoroughgoing fashion.

I just talked to some marine pilots who were about to take off in div bombers. They said:

"It's their necks or ours. We'll get them all right."

New Draft Bills Introduced

Meanwhile, bills to extend the draft to eighteen and nineteen years olds have been introduced by Senator Gurney (R-SD) and in the House by the author of the original selective service law, Rep. Wadsworth (R-NY).

Selective service officials have made no secret of the fact that building up the projected 10,000,000-man army will require the induction of the 18- and 19-year olds.

In response to a question, Mr.
Roosevelt said today that attention had been given to proposals that naval enlistments be halted for the time being, so that the selective service could assign men to the branches of the service where they are most needed. There are now about 700,000 enlisted men in the navy, he said.

This compares with 27,168 sailors and 38,518 marines on active duty on Oct. 1, 1941.

Although the plan for halting enlistments has been under study, Secretary of the Navy Knox informed reporters later in the day that it would not be put into effect.
"The Navy intends to continue voluntary enlistments as long as we can get them in, and we are getting them in very satisfactory number now."

car.

While Laval read the American statement without much comment and the British unofficial charge of Axis intrigue with some heat,
he added:

"That the occupation was due to military necessity (as stressed by Washington) is a thesis that may be supported or not. But that the British should try to justify their aggression by raising false pretenses is something I can not support."

Prime Minister Churchill announced the landings on Madagascar in the House of Commons, and a British commentator said it was an all-empire undertaking—that it did not include the Fighting French forces as reported yesterday by Vichy.

The principal landings were at the three ports shelled and bombed yesterday: Ambanja, 120 miles southwest of the Diego Suarez naval base captured by the British in the initial operation on Madagascar last May; Majuna, 200 miles down the coast, and Morondava, 370 miles further south.

In addition, the British announced the capture of the island of Nosy-
Be on the seaward approach to Ambanja and said the British troops were moving southward from the Diego Suarez area overland.

American Fliers

The most encouraging feature of the battle was that Japanese pilots definitely were inferior to those in previous flights over the Pacific, and their planes continued to burst into flames and crash when hit by even a few bullets.

Death brushed by the wing-tips of our boys in the daylight attack on the large Jap naval formation.

Sights Huge Battleship

Lieut. Robert Elder, 24, of Milwaukee, Ore., related "there were four heavy cruisers, six light cruisers and six destroyers in the main formation. Over at one side, I sighted a huge battleship trying to sneak away."

"The battleship changed its course and started to run," Lieutenant Elder continued. "The anti-aircraft fire was coming pretty thick. It was a beautiful evening; I could see a big white circle on the deck of the battleship. I pushed into a dive; held my sights all the way and released, then pulled out. My rear seat man saw a big burst of smoke and flame on the starboard side amidships, just behind the funnel and between the forward and after gun turrets."

Then he watched Ensign Robert Gordon of McCook, Neb., let go with a bomb just off the bow. "The battleship was turning to the left," Elder resumed, "and his bomb hit just to the right. It picked the entire bow out of the water and gave it a big shove over. There was smoke and fire from my hit."

Larsen Hits Cruiser

A moment later they saw Lieut.
Harold (Swede) Larsen of Brim-ingham, Ala., single out a cruiser. "He hit the cruiser amidships and a column of water spouted higher than the ship's mast and splashed over the well deck," Elder said. "It was a terrific wallop."

Three more United States navy pilots fought their way into the winged circles of axes in the withering assault on the eighty-plane Jap flight over Guadalcanal. Each brought his total number of victims to five, which constitutes ace ranking. They were Lieut. Carlton Starks, Memphis, Tenn.; Lieut. H.
M. Jensen, St. Paul, Minn., and Machinist Donald E. Runyan, Crawfordsville, Ind. Runyan got four Japs today, for a total of eight.
Starks and Jensen each total six.

A naval flier, Ensign F. R. Cash, register of Bismark, N. D., felt especially good about the battle. After downing one enemy plane, he climbed "and I saw a Japanese Messerschmitt 109 sitting all by itself. It must have been a big shot watching the battle or a photo plane. My tracers clipped through his engine and he spun in flames."

Two Killed

tute of Aeronautics, Jackson, Miss., before joining Curtis.

Winston J. Dandrew, 24, a workman inside the building into which the burning plane plunged, described the crash as like a "bombing."

"That was what we thought it was at first—a bombing," he said as he lay in a hospital bed.

Things Happened Fast

"But there really wasn't time to think much of anything, everything happened so fast. First there was the crash of the plane through the roof and then, almost instantly it seemed, a blinding flash occurred as the plane exploded."

"Just when it exploded I cannot say—whether on the floor or between the roof and the floor. Bits of flame and metal went shooting in all directions.

"It is hard for me to understand how I escaped alive. I couldn't have been more than one or two feet to the side of the edge of the hole above me. A piece of metal knocked me in the arm, but aside from that the flying pieces of metal seemed to miss me."

"Right near me a man was knocked against a ladder and had difficulty in extricating himself. I pulled him free and we both beat it as fast as we could. Later we came back to help the other injured."

"One very badly burned man was on his hands and knees and screaming constantly. Others had their clothes all burned off them. However, rescue workers did a wonderful job in getting to treat the injured as soon as possible."

Forrestal Says Marines Are Too Tough for Japs

Reveals Enemy Treachery upon Return from Pacific Tour

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP)—Just back from an inspection of the Pacific fighting area, James V. For-restal, undersecretary of the navy, said today it would "be a tough job" for the Japanese to recapture the Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands.

"In the marines," he added, "they have met equally tough and alert people for the first time."

The undersecretary described his experiences at a press conference held jointly with Secretary Knox.
The conference also produced the following:

Knox To Visit Rio

Knox will visit Rio De Janeiro within the next two months and inspect American outposts en route.

The secretary said that ship launchings are now greater than ship sinkings, but clear through to the end of the war there must be constant vigilance against enemy submarines.

Forrestal praised American planes and their crews. The Japs were outmatched in the air, he said, both in the quality of planes and the skill and courage of the men who fly them.

The Jap Zero fighter was light and highly maneuverable, he added, but one hit was enough to finish it, because of its lack of armor.

He reported, too, that American airmen in the Pacific were of the opinion that the quality of the Japanese aviators was deteriorating.
Both their "flying skill and their determination were below the grade of what our fellows met" earlier in the war, he said.

Pearl Harbor Normal

Pearl Harbor, he said, looked "perfectly normal again," and Midway island was in "good shape." The American garrison there, he added, was "looking for the Japs any time they want to come back."

Forrestal told a story of a marine in a battle area who picked up a wounded Jap to carry him to a hospital. The sea-soldier "suddenly felt a sharp pain," he said, "and found that the Japanese was biting him."

Japs Are Treacherous

To this Knox added a story told to him by Lieutenant General Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the marine corps. A wounded Japanese lay on the ground, with a hand grenade clasped beneath his body.
When a marine approached, the Japanese pulled the pin and killed both himself and the marine.

"That happened at least twice," Knox said.

Many College Students May See Service

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11 (AP)—Third service command officials said today
2,114 Maryland college students would be affected by the plan to call to active service college students enlisted in the army reserve as they come of draft age.

Officials predicted the call for some of them might come as early as November, depending on the arrangement of their college schedule.

Col. D. N. Cheston, head of the army recruiting office, said, however, that no official order had yet come through from Washington.

The Third Service Command said
3,283 college students in Virginia,
2,249 in the District of Columbia and 13,879 in Pennsylvania would be affected by the regulation.

Gen. Petrott Praises State Minute Men

BALTIMORE, Sept. 11 (AP)—Brig.
Gen. Francis A. Petrott, Maryland adjutant general, today praised the efficiency of minute men units already active and said Maryland citizens should feel a whole lot safer because of their work.

"It hardly seems possible that any group of men could have been whipped into such efficiency of drill in so short a time," he said.

Gen. Petrott reviewed one unit in Baltimore last night and said other units throughout the state would be called out later for official inspection.

New Rubber Czar

piled up behind him, all of them, driving at more than thirty-five miles per hour, had overtaken him in the space of twelve miles.

Cannot Pass President

(Secret service men in a car following that of the President do not permit motorists to pass him on the road. Consequently, all twenty-two were in a tight procession behind the presidential party.)

The Baruch report, in addition to gasoline rationing, proposed a nationwide speed limit of 35 miles per hour; an average annual mileage of 5,000, with less-essential motorists cut far below that point;
the diversion of reclaimed rubber and thiolok to recapping old tires and making new ones; compulsory periodic tire inspections, and a voluntary program to cover the period before the recommendations could be made effective.

Mr. Roosevelt said today that he thought local rationing boards should be the primary administrative force, because a motorist's neighbors are best in a position to judge when he is making improper use of his car.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

If India is the next attack goal set by Hitler for his Japanese Axis mate, there is no doubt that this time the British, despite perils that faced them in Egypt or the urgency of home demands for a second-front concentration, have got the jump on the enemy.

Even as Mr. Churchill voiced his first soothing statement to Parliament on the Indian situation, powerful British air, sea and land forces were deployed to mop up Madagascar. That his India exposition was timed to coincide with that move is obvious.

Complete British occupation of the huge French island must prove a stumbling block in the Axis pathway, whether it is a junction of Axis forces in the middle east that is to be attempted, or whether a Japanese assault upon India to capitalize on internal disturbances there is in the making.

Move Against Japanese
The excuse offered for the Washington-approved British action was Japanese submarine activity off Madagascar and Japanese air reconnoitering over the island. Unless they came from the decks of carriers in the Indian Ocean, those Nipponese planes could not have reached Madagascar.

The presence was a sure indication of threatening Japanese activities against the Allied supply lines around the cape both to India and to Egypt and the Middle East.
It warranted the London and Washington assumption that Vichy might be winking at, if not directly fostering, Axis efforts to set up secret Japanese submarine and air bases on the great French island.

If so, British action has gone far to scotch the plan. And with Madagascar not only eliminated as a possible sore spot on the flank of the Allied supply routes in the Indian ocean but available as a powerful supporting base for United Nations use, Tokyo probably would be forced to reconsider any project for invading India across the Bay of Bengal.

British Position Secure Secured by complete occupation of Madagascar, the British position on the sea flank of any Japanese attempt to span the Bay of Bengal is strongly reinforced. Ceylon and defense installations on the west coast of India now manned, Churchill said, by more white as well as Indian troops than in the history of British-Indian relations, are prepared to offer stout opposition.

For India defense purposes the essential element of the Churchill review was his statement that no Indian unit of the Imperial army in India or elsewhere had been influenced by the civil-disobedience campaign to force an immediate grant of independence. He also paid highest tribute to the loyalty of the Indian police and of Indian

Doctor Says Results of Low Activity Of Thyroid Gland May Prove Serious

by LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We wrote in the last two articles this week of the functions which the thyroid gland performs in the body, and in summary we said that it produces a secretion which activates every cell in the body to a certain rate of function.

No gland or human being or living organism, however, jogs along at the same rate and the thyroid sometimes produces an excess of secretion. This may correspond to the days when we are full of pep in the case of people like Hitler, and in the case of people like Hitler, it is a natural to suppose that sometimes the thyroid gland does not produce as much secretion as normally. And this actually happens in Nature. The result is just the opposite of increased secretion—the person affected instead of being full of pep is sluggish and sleepy.

Symptoms

Instead of a fast pulse he has a slow pulse. Instead of feeling warm, and needing less clothes and bed clothes than normal, he needs more and will sit with long-sleeved underwear on the hottest day. He has an unresponsive expression on his face and falls asleep easily. He increases in weight. His basal metabolism is low.

This condition which comes on for some people in middle age and is called myxoedema is often very unfortunate for the victims because in so many instances nobody in the family or among the friends understands what is really happening.

Women are afflicted more often than men, and I have known instances when the condition went on and grew progressively worse for years, and every one said — "Oh, grandma, or mother, or Aunt Lizzie is getting old. She doesn't want to get around any more. She is drawing into herself. She just likes to sit by the fire. She isn't interested in things any more" — and similar expressions, when all the poor thing needs is a few grains of thyroid extract to make her just as normal as anybody. It is really a mystery that just a pinch of chemical will restore a person's soul.

Many Degrees of Condition

There are, of course, all varieties and degrees of the condition. I have described a full blown case and there are rare. There are many mild cases. I know a doctor who constantly runs a low basal metabolism and who takes just a little thyroid extract about once a week or once a month. This is enough to keep him active, in fact a human dynamo, so that he plays a swell game of golf and enjoys himself immensely.

But don't try this on yourself. There is nothing any more dangerous than a layman dosing himself or herself (it is usually a her) with thyroid extract. To reduce fat or any other reason. I have known nervous invalids created for life that way. It's all right to try to understand about the thyroid gland, but don't dose yourself unless you are near a basal metabolism apparatus.

There is a form of inactivity of the thyroid gland that appears at infancy, in fact at birth. These are the cretins and unless treated with thyroid extract they are always on a sub-standard mental level.

Questions and Answers

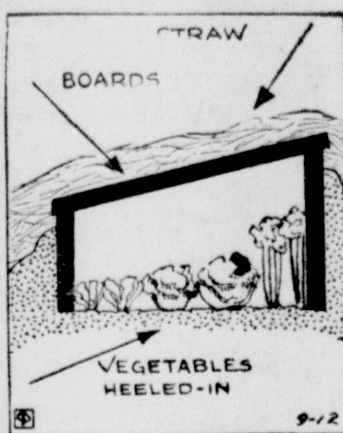

P. M.: Is there another cure for hernia besides operation?

Answer: In what sense do you use "cure"? Cure and treatment are two different things. There are several possible treatments for hernia, but no cure except surgical. The most prominent surgeon in my town wears a truss for his hernia. So he must think "treatment" at times preferable to cure.

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Winter Use of Frames

Either the hot bed or cold frame or both can be used as storage quarters during the early winter months.

After the first frost but before danger of a hard freeze, endive, lettuce, chicory, parsley, Swiss chard, celery and even cauliflower can be heeled in the frames placed close together.

Place a layer of loose boards over the plants and ventilate them on nice sunny days by using a stone or small piece of wood to brace the planks up at one end.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, when severe weather sets in, cover over the planks with a layer of straw. To shed rains or melting snow keep the sash over the straw. Another layer of planks or boards can be set over the sash if necessary.

The frame should be banked up around the sides with cornstalks, leaves or straw, covered over with soil.

Miss Rhea McLaughlin Is Wed to Clarence Yergan

Double Ring Ceremony Performed in Central Methodist Church

Mr. and Mrs. George B. McLaughlin, 731 Cleveland avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Rhea Mae McLaughlin, to Clarence Willard Yergan, son of Mrs. Clara Yergan, Maryland avenue, and the late Frederick Yergan.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock last evening in Central Methodist church with the Rev. Lee Holliday Richcreek, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lator were the attendants.

The ceremony was solemnized before members of the immediate families against a background of white gladioli, asters and ferns.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a two piece street length white veiled suit with matching accessories. Her only ornament was a pair of gold bracelets which had belonged to her paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Georgia McLaughlin. She carried a white Bible, a gift from the bridegroom, with a marker of gardenias.

The matron of honor wore a black crepe costume with matching accessories and a corsage of deep pink rosebuds.

The mother of the bride chose a salute blue dress with which she wore matching accessories and a corsage of pale pink rosebuds.

The bride is a graduate of Allegheny high school and is employed at the Celanese Corporation of America.

The bridegroom attended Allegheny high school and is active in Boy Scout activities. He is employed by the Cumberland Office and Supply company.

Following the ceremony a reception was held for the wedding guests in the Sunday school room of the church.

Upon their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Yergan will be at home after September 21 at their apartment, 146 Bedford street.

Emmanuel Council Will Meet Monday

The Parish Council of Emmanuel Episcopal church and parish will meet at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening in the parish house.

The Rev. David Cartwright Clark, rector, will preside at the meeting at which the parish program for the church year 1942-1943 will be considered.

Duly elected representatives of the following organizations will attend: Emmanuel Guild, Woman's Auxiliary, Emmanuel church school, senior choir, junior choir, Altar Ward, Choir chapter, Young Peoples Fellowship, and Girl Scout Troop No. 2.

W.S.C.S. Organizes Into Three Zones At Meeting Here

Inspiration Talk Is Made by Mrs. Joy Elmer Morgan of Baltimore

The Methodist Women of the Women's Society of Christian Service in the Cumberland area organized into three zone groups at meeting Thursday at the Centre Street Methodist church.

Mrs. John G. Cook, of the Frostburg church; Mrs. Robert W. Young of Davis Memorial church and Mrs. Harvey H. Hill, of Centre Street church are the zone leaders.

The purpose of the zone meeting is to acquaint the women of the local societies with the various departments of work which have been outlined for them by the Women's Division of the Methodist church, the national organization. This was explained by Mrs. Joy Elmer Morgan, Baltimore, conference president; Mrs. S. R. Neel, city, conference secretary of supplies and the district officers at the round table discussions held during the morning session.

Mrs. E. Phillips presided at the luncheon given by the Centre Street Women's society, which was attended by more than 200 women. Mrs. Morgan was honor guest and gave the inspirational talk. She stressed the challenging needs of the mission field today and stated that the women must carry on more earnestly than ever before, and quoted President Roosevelt in saying that religious work is needed in this war-torn world.

In closing she urged the women to put forth every effort possible to bring up the "emergency gift" of $6,000, which is the quota of the Baltimore conference in the $400,000 special gift to be raised by the Women's Division before October 15, for the needs of the mission field.

Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Michaels were presented to the group by Mrs. Phillips. Dr. Michaels briefly extended welcome to the group. Mrs. Cook, district vice-president, gave the benediction.

LeOra Eggleston Honored at Party

Mrs. Walter O. Schief entertained with a birthday party in honor of Miss LeOra Eggleston, last evening at her home, 413 Washington street. Two tables of bridge were in play.

Porter Collins Will Be Toastmaster; Golf Tournament To Be Held

The sixteenth annual get-together of the staff of the Kelly-Springfield Tire company and the Celanese Corporation of America will be held today at the Cumberland Country Club, with the Kelly staff as host.

Porter D. Collins will be toastmaster and master of ceremonies for the 7 o'clock dinner. Edmund S. Burke, president of the tire company, will give the address of welcome and Fred T. Small, president of the Celanese will reply. The festivities will begin with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," and close with "Auld Lang Syne," with James M. Pitkethly directing. A golf tournament will begin at 1 o'clock and prizes will be awarded for the various matches.

Woman's Civic Club Plans Work for Ensuing Year

Organization Will Resume Its Activities on September 24

The Woman's Civic Club of Cumberland has made plans for the ensuing year, feeling that it is important now for club women to stay together, due to the many problems arising out of the war. Officers want to keep the organization functioning so that members may be called together from time to time to discuss important topics.

The club will resume activities September 24, when Mrs. Walter E. Kriel, state president, and Mrs. A. M. Golladay, president of the First District, will share honors with Mrs. Thomas LeClear, the new president, at a 1 o'clock luncheon meeting at the Centre Street Methodist church recreation hall.

Presidents of the other Federated clubs in the county and the Oakland club will be honor guests. Mrs. Edgar D. Wunder, of Jeanette, Pa., will give her lecture on "The Swift Seasons Roll," at the opening meeting. Mrs. Julius Schindler has arranged a program on some important legislation for the October meeting.

The program committee, feeling that members should be studying the kind of peace we should have if the Allies win the war, has asked David Nuzum, professor of English at Potomac State college, Keyser, W. Va., to review former President Hoover and Hugh Gibson's book, "Problems of Lasting Peace," for the November meeting.

Mrs. William Longwell of Gratton, W. Va., will give a reading at the Christmas party in December. Plans have also been made for group singing and other music at all of the meetings.

In order to have come flexibility in the programs, when world events move so rapidly, the committee has not decided upon the programs for the meetings after Christmas but expects to choose topics that will be of interest to the club members.

MISS POORBAUGH IS HONORED WITH LINEN SHOWER

Mrs. Orville Petenbrink entertained with a linen shower Thursday evening at her home in Corriganville in honor of Miss Pauline Poorbaugh, bride-elect of Sgt. Charles R. Twigg, Fort Benning, Ga. Miss Poorbaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Poorbaugh, Corriganville, will become the bride of Sgt. Twigg, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Twigg, Bedford road, later this month.

Guests included Marion Whalley, Juanita Kirtley, Martha Hoover, Mary Becker, Alice Carley, Josephine Loretta, Louise Harr, Edith Darnley, Beverly Slaven, Teresa Firley, Margaret Campbell, Doras Pollock, Jane Ward, Priscilla Young and Janet Dodson.

Mrs. Charles A. Stump, Roaring Springs, Pa., entertained previously with a lawn party and miscellaneous shower at Mr. and Mrs. Poorbaugh's home in honor of the bride-elect. The pink and white color scheme was carried out in the table decorations and each guest received a miniature bride as a favor. The buffet supper was served on the lawn. Dancing and contest games featured the entertainment.

Guests at the lawn party were Mrs. Ellsworth Rizer, Mrs. Olen Mosser, Mrs. Chester Crabtree, Mrs. Ralph Robinson, Mrs. Charles Suelson, Mrs. Hazel Lepley, Mrs. Calvin Delbrook, Mrs. Orville Petenbrink, Miss Clara Jean Emley, Miss Marcella Murray, Miss Marie Crab-

Willis Conover Is Honored by W.T.B.O. Staff

Farewell Party Is Given at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club

The staff of WTBO entertained Willis Conover with a farewell party last evening at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. A red and white color scheme was carried out in the table decorations of fall flowers and red candles. Following the dinner the evening was spent in informal entertainment.

Mr. Conover will leave next week for Redbank, N. J., to visit his parents, Capt. and Mrs. W. C. Conover before entering military service September 22.

Other guests were, Mrs. Aurelia Becker, Miss Margaret Coulehan, Miss Ina Lee Eichner, Miss Eleanor Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. G. Pennington Richards, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. George Eichner, Mr. and Mrs. G. K. Rosamond, Wesley Williams, Edward Tolman, W. Hendry, Kingsley Baldwin and Dan Goeky.

Red Cross Wants Volunteer Nurses For Instructors

Mrs. A. M. Lichtenstein, Red Cross home nursing chairman, requests any graduate nurse, with teaching ability who will volunteer as an instructor for the home nursing courses to be held this winter to contact the Red Cross office.

Applications to take the course from both the city and the county have been coming in and Mrs. Lichtenstein wants to begin September 15. The thirty-hour course will be held one evening a week for fifteen weeks.

The new policy of the National Red Cross calls for these courses to be given through volunteer instead of paid workers, drawing on nurses who have retired or have married and are not continuing work.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the moral and spiritual foundations of freedom cannot stand firm without religious teaching for all and without religious faith and practice; and

WHEREAS, in this time of our nation's greater responsibility and opportunity among the countries of the world, millions of our young men must serve on battle lines, and millions more of our fellow citizens must serve in our great war industries under conditions which disrupt moral and settled family and community living; and

WHEREAS, we break faith with them if we do not keep sound and strong the moral and spiritual foundations of our civic and social life in this community;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Thomas F. Conlon, Mayor of the City of Cumberland, hereby proclaim the period beginning Sunday, September 27, and continuing through Sunday, October 4, as the Twelfth Annual Religious Education Week and request that all citizens with the families renew their allegiance to the churches of the choice and seek that continuing religious instruction and worship which shall establish in their lives the spiritual foundations of freedom.

CUMBERLAND HOMEMAKER SAYS LOVELIER HANDS EASY TO GET

Mrs. Wm. L. Wilson, of 523 Washington Street, whose son is in the service, is very active locally in volunteer war work. She says, "Nowadays there's no excuse for hands that are rough and red from using strong soaps. It's so easy to help them look smoother, whiter by changing to Ivory Soap for dishwashing. After all, everybody knows Ivory is pure and gentle—so many doctors recommend it for the sensitive skin of tiny babies."

whiter by changing to Ivory Soap for dishwashing. After all, everybody knows Ivory is pure and gentle—so many doctors recommend it for the sensitive skin of tiny babies."

You, too, can have Lovelier Hands in 12 Days

Stop using strong washday soaps for dishes... soaps that can leave your hands rough and red. Put Ivory in your dishpan and use its revel suds... the same pure, gentle suds doctors recommend for baby's sensitive skin. Then, see your hands get smoother, whiter, in 12 days!

Change to Ivory for Dishes See the thick, quick suds pile right up... even in hard water! Watch dishes come clean in a hurry! And wonder of wonders, when you look at your hands 12 days from today... they'll actually be softer, smoother! Get 8 big bars of Ivory Soap today. 99¢/100% Pure... It Floats.

Judge W.A. Hustler Hears Testimony In School Case

Carlos Citizens Want To Retain Building as Community Center

A number of witnesses testified yesterday in circuit court here, in the hearing in litigation brought by citizens of the village of Carlos, to retain use of the community school house for civic enterprises.

The hearing opened yesterday morning before Associate Judge William A. Hustler and testimony concluded at a few minutes before 3 p. m.

The citizens claim that the consolidation of their school with the junior grades of Frostburg two years ago was made contingent upon the Carlos building being turned over to them for community purposes by the Board of Education on a five-year lease. They further claim that an agreement was reached that the Carlos school would be available for regular school classes in the event children of the village should become snow-bound from attending classes at Frostburg.

Deed Proviso of 1890
These provisions, it was argued today by I. Duke Avnet, attorney, disbar operation of a proviso in an 1890 deed given by the Borden Mining Company when the property was handed over to the Board of Education with the condition that title would revert to the company one year after abandonment of the property for educational purposes. Since 1890 title to the property has changed hands several times, resting at present in the name of William Shumaker and wife under a deed recorded August 3, 1942, and conveyed by James A. Morgan and wife.

Thomas L. Richards, attorney for the Shumakers, objected to the citizens' claims on the grounds that alleged agreements with the School Board did not hinder reversion of title to the property under the 1890 deed provision. He cited that the Carlos school was abandoned for school purposes in June, 1940, thus making the title reversion operative one year later.

Incurred Expenses
The citizens claim that, on the assumption that they would have use of the building for at least five years, they have incurred expenses in furnishing the place for conducting civilian defense classes and for Red Cross work since the declaration of war.

The court did not rule on Attorney Richards' demurrer to the citizens' charges.

Harold E. Naughton is co-counsel with Mr. Avnet.
Daniel F. McMullen, attorney, represented the Board of Education, and C. William Gilchrist, the Borden Mining Company.

THOMAS IMES, 28, IS STRUCK BY CAR NEAR MT. SAVAGE

Thomas Imes, 28, of Sunnyside, near Mt. Savage, suffered severe head injuries shortly before 1 a. m. Friday when he was struck by an automobile while lying on the road near his home. He was reported as improving at Miners hospital, Frostburg, last night.

Said Trooper M. Frank Beamer said Imes, a brickyard worker, apparently was asleep on the road leading to Sunnyside from the Mt. Savage road when he was struck by a car operated by John Isaac Daniels, of Mt. Savage. Daniels said it was foggy on the mountain, and he was climbing the grade at fifteen miles an hour when the car hit the man. The driver told police he thought the car hit a rock and he stopped to investigate. Daniels took the injured man to the hospital.

Imes had an ear nearly torn off and his head was literally "ground into the road," the trooper said. Daniels, a Clevelander, was taking several workers to their homes at the time. The driver was not held, pending a further investigation.

Imes is married and the father of four children. Police were told that a brother-in-law was with him prior to the mishap, but went on home when Imes sat down along the road.

John B. Mordock Is Promoted to Business Specialist by OPA

Promotion of John B. Mordock, former manager of the local Sears Roebuck and Company store, and president of the Maryland Junior Association of Commerce, to the position of senior business specialist, was announced yesterday by Leo H. McCormick, state director of the Office of Price Administration.

Stewart Waring also was promoted to a similar post.

court and Douglas Bowers, now retired, was license clerk.

As the sportsmen dashed into the clerk's office, one of them said, "Are we too late to get a hunting license?"

The jovial Lloyd Shaffer turned to Mr. Bowers and said, "Doug, have we got any squirrels left?"

The other story is about a Frostburg hunter who got a license with the intention of hunting deer before, but had been a squirrel hunter of some repute. After he got his license, he came down town and went to a local hardware store to buy ammunition for the expedition. He explained to the clerk that he was going deer hunting the next day and told him the caliber weapon he would use and said he stopped in to buy ammunition.

The clerk said, "How many shells do you want?"
The Frostburg hunter replied, "Why, only one, the law only lets you kill one deer."

Fifth Blackout

tion of America plant at Amelle, which has spent thousands of dollars perfecting its blackout program, went along with Allegheny county. Magnus Work, safety engineer, was in charge of operations.

Brooks Terms It "Best"
W. Earl Brooks, chief air raid warden of Allegheny county, arrived in Cumberland by train at 8:48 p. m., and immediately contacted Ingram by telephone to ask "what's cooking?"

"You better come up to city hall immediately, we're going to have some fun in a few minutes," Ingram replied.

From a point atop city hall Brooks saw the show and remarked, "It's the best blackout we've had in Cumberland since they were inaugurated in December."

and customers imbibed their drinks as usual as dark blinds effectively kept any light from shining from the rooms.

Last night persons in these drink emporiums sat through the thirty-minute blackout without any drinks except those they had when the sirens sounded. The interiors of these places were pitch dark and lighted cigarettes looked like so many "fireflies."

Germans Ask Vichy For Dakar Consulate

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (P)—The Germans have asked Vichy officials to allow them to establish "a German consul" at Dakar, strategic French West African port, but the French have declined for the moment, reliable European informants said tonight.

The United States has a consulate at Dakar, approximately 1,600 miles across the South Atlantic from Brazil, and the Germans used that fact for a talking point of "equal privilege," it was understood.

Hagerstown To Have Large Dormitory

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 11 (P)—A Hagerstown furniture company has received priorities on building materials to be used to convert two floors in the company's building into dormitory rooms for women employed in defense industries.

John Shockey, owner of the building, said that remodeling of the floors would begin immediately and that the rooms are expected to be completed and ready for occupancy by October 15.

When completed, the dormitory is to have a first-floor lobby and is to be staffed with a matron at all times.

Women who lease or rent the rooms are to be recommended to the dormitory by the personnel department of the industry in which they are employed, Shockey said.

Despite the scarcity of housing accommodations, employment officials said there had been no shortage thus far of women workers in the defense plants. Officials added that the dormitory project would make room for other employees coming to Hagerstown to work.

Essence of Love Seems To Evade Any Translation

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX—Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Never have I been so flattered as when a friend—a college professor, at that—asked me to define love.

He's been giving a highly successful course of lectures on love and marriage in a co-educational college for the last six years. He reminds me that at the turn of the century, when he was a college student, this column anticipated what psychoanalysts did later—freedom of complexes through confession. In those old days we used to call it "writing letters about love."

Perhaps unconsciously, when I inaugurated this column, I may have recalled the wisdom of my old grandmother who, whenever she felt irritated and wanted to "reason with" (when it happened to be me I called it "scolding") any of her ten children, she wrote them a letter and then put the letter in the fire. It made her feel ever so much better to get the matter off her chest and it didn't offend any of the ten who adored her.

No Good Definition Yet

After considering the college professor's question, I wrote him: "Who could define love? No one, to date, has been able to give the perfect answer. Genius has made approaches to a definition but the true essence of love seems to have evaded translation."

The Brownings whose love was considered perfect had this to say: Mrs. Browning in "The Sonnets from the Portuguese."

"I love thee with a love I seemed to lose
With my lost saints—I love thee
With the breath,
Smiles, tears, of all my life—
and, if God choose,
I shall but love thee better after death."

And Robert Browning, her husband wrote:

"God be thanked, The meanest of his creatures boasts
Two soul sides—one to face the world, with one to show a woman when he loves her."

Plato, who believed in platonic friendship, summed it up: "At the touch of love, everyone becomes a poet." Centuries later, Madame De Stael:

"Love is a symbol of eternity. It wipes out all sense of time, destroying all memory of a beginning and all fear of an end."

Shakespeare's Ideas
Shakespeare, who certainly knew a thing or two about love, wrote: "Except I be by Sylvia in the night."

There is no music in the nightingale.
In another mood he wrote: "Men have died from time to time and worms have eaten them, but not for love."

And Antoine Bret: "The first sight of love is the last of wisdom." I recalled to my friend, the professor, if he had heard "Napoleon as Lover and Husband," he might enjoy this quotation from one of Napoleon's letters: "I have never loved anyone for love's sake, except Josephine—a little."

Three Lonesome Girls

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We live in a big city; we all like to dance but yet we don't like to go to dances without escorts. When we go down to town to a show or window-shopping, we see many nice-looking young men talking to each other, but as nice girls we can't go up and start a conversation.

We happen to live in a district where there are no young people's clubs for us to join; we enjoy sports but we don't want to go to these events alone. We correspond with some boys in the service, but just on a friendly basis.

As the city from which you write is one of the largest in the world, it's a little hard to understand your difficulty in making friends. If you had only told me the district in which you live, I could have been of more help to you. Almost every church in your city is engaged in making things agreeable for soldiers, and there's a crying need for girls to talk to these men, dance with them and serve them suppers.

There's the U. S. O., which take the girls to camps for dancing. Cooperating with the U. S. O. are the Y.W.C.A., Traveler's Aid, Catholic Community Service, Jewish Welfare Society, Y.M.C.A. and Salvation Army. Certainly, by making connections with any of these organizations you can get to know plenty of young men.

Requirements for Nursing Career

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Is it possible to take up nurses' training without a college education? I had every intention of attending college until my marriage during my senior year in high school last year. My husband wants to enlist, and I would like to train to be a nurse if possible. Please tell me where I can get information in regard to such a course.

MRS. R. D. G.

It is unnecessary to have a college education before entering training as a professional nurse. A high school education is required. Apply to Nursing Information Bureau of the American Nurses' Association, 1790 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

29,308 Persons Use Constitution Pool; Receipts Are $3,523

Records for attendance and total receipts for a single season were established this year at the Constitution park swimming pool, according to figures released yesterday by Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor.

The report showed that 29,308 persons passed through the turnstiles at the city pool and total receipts amounted to $3,523.07.

Attendance exceeded the 1,000 mark on five different occasions during the season. The all-time high was established on July 19 when 1,584 paid admissions were recorded.

The 1942 season opened May 30 and was concluded on Labor day, Monday, September 7.

Mrs. Lelia C. Ervin Succumbs at Age 76

Mother of Charles A. Barringer Had Been in Ill Health

Mrs. Lelia Catherine Ervin, 76, died yesterday morning after having been in ill health for several years. She was born in Cabarrus county, N. C., September 14, 1866. Her first husband, Nathaniel Redwine Barringer, died about fifty years ago in Cabarrus county. She then married Lee Ervin and lived in Hickory, N. C., until his death in 1906. With her three children she moved to Newport News, Va., coming from there to Cumberland in 1911.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. S. O. Stone, Concord, N. C.; one son by her first marriage, Charles A. Barringer, 420 Louisiana avenue, an employee of the Times and Allegheny Company; and one daughter, Mrs. H. H. Lapp, by her second marriage. Another daughter of the second union, Mrs. J. Benjamin Manley, of Belleville, N. J., died in Memorial hospital, July 11, 1941, while on a visit.

Mrs. Ervin is also survived by the following grandchildren: Lelia Jane, Carol Frances, John Benjamin and Donald Joseph Manley, Nutley, N. J.; Charlotte Ann and Charles Wilbert Barringer, and Charles Herbert, Carleton Lee, Lorian Clifton and Robert Lapp, this city. Services will be conducted Sunday afternoon from the home of her son, by the Rev. Edwin W. Saylor, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which she was a member. Interment will be in Hillcrest Burial Park.

William P. Heavner Dies

William Perry Heavner, 60, a farmer, died suddenly Thursday morning at his home near Flintstone, following a heart attack. He attended the Brethren church here. Mr. Heavner is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Elmer Ehrhart, Baltimore; Mrs. James Poole, North Rose, N. Y.; Mrs. Herbert Trail, Flintstone; Mrs. Homer Hout and Mrs. Harry Allison, Cumberland; three sons, Justin H. Flintstone, Estlin B. and Carl W. Heavner, Cumberland; one brother, Stafford Heavner, Cabins, W. Va.; four sisters, Mrs. Jasper Morral, Fort Ashby, W. Va.; Mrs. Fred Digby, Akron, Ohio; Miss Lona Heavner, New York; Mrs. Frank Adams, Merchantville, N. J.; and thirteen grandchildren.

Henry F. Johnson Rites

Rites for Henry Frank Johnson, 75, Narrows Park, were conducted yesterday at the Wolford funeral home and later at the Mt. Hope Christian Church, Artemas, Pa., by the Rev. Walter Twigg, Flintstone.

Palbearers were Frank Bennett, Henry A. Everline, Earl Cook, Amos Collins, George H. Price and Ford Lee.

Mothers Learn How To Cook in a Blitz

PANS FROM CANS: Girl Scouts show how it's done

By GLADYS DEGENER

Want to know what to do in a blitz? The Girl Scouts will teach you. They'll show you how to cook a ten-course dinner over a campfire, using pots and pans whipped up from the spur of the moment from tin cans. They'll teach you how to make an efficient stove out of a coffee can and some candle grease. They'll instruct you in the art of mass feeding.

Mother is taking lessons from daughter now—and does she love it! Westchester women have been flocking to the Wartime Workshops at Camp Edith Macy, New York, the National Training School for Girl Scout Leaders, this summer to learn emergency skills, should they be stripped of all the normal equipment of a housewife. Sticks, bricks, and tin cans go into the making of outdoor kitchens. Hand-dipped candles furnish light in case there is no electricity. Newspapers are used in making warm clothes, and vegetables, berries and bark are used for dyeing fabrics.

Here are some of the things Girl Scouts know how to do: Given a No. 10 tin can and a piece of wire, they can make a large pot suitable for cooking a jumbo stew for a hungry crowd. A few bricks (which could be picked up from the debris of a bombed house) are piled up for a fireplace and the stew goes on.

A small can is turned into a cooking pan this way: cut around the center of the can, leaving one side uncut. Bend this down and wrap it around a long stick which serves as the handle. A pancake turner is whisked into shape by using the bottom of a small can and a stick for the handle. It is used in turning eggs or pancakes which are fried on a sizzling hot, smooth field stone.

In case of rain, Girl Scouts use a tallow stove. An old coffee can is partly filled with tightly rolled newspaper, a braided string is pushed down through the center of the paper to serve as wick, and then melted candle grease is poured into the can. With this kind of stove, there's no need to hunt for dry sticks, twigs or leaves for fuel.

Out of a wire coat hanger, a satisfactory toaster can be made. First the hanger is straightened into a long piece of wire, then the one end is twisted round and round to make a flat support for the bread.

The Girl Scouts won't be caught in a blitz and neither will their mothers.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

TONY'S INFLUENCE in the Wister household was strong. "Eat your vegetable, dear," she'd said to Sonny on one occasion, and that young man shook his head stubbornly.

"Uncle Tony say 'tisn't vegetable," he'd explained. Across his yellow head, Tony and Barbara's eyes had met and they broke into laughter.

"So that's the way you're bringing up my son! To confound his mother."

"I'll always be a good influence," Tony had replied gravely.

She counted the tomatoes in her basket and added another. Tony could always eat one more than he said. And what he'd do with the chocolate cake with the butter icing!

Everything was planned for him today. All the things he liked. Thin bread-and-butter sandwiches with crisp bacon, fried chicken, mellow packed in ice. That would be for their noon meal. At night they'd have hot dogs roasted over the fire on the beach, a big thermos bottle of fragrant coffee and wedges of chocolate cake.

She'd had to get up at six to get it ready, but getting up at six was nice for Tony. Dear Tony. He was good to her, and for her. And she was good for him. He came to her with his troubles and went away comforted.

She wondered why he never spoke to her about his feeling for Pamela.

She yanked a clump of ragweed out of the pansy bed.

Of course he did tell her that he'd had letters from Pam, mentioning them casually.

Well, she was a sister to Tony and lots of brothers didn't tell their sisters about their love affairs.

She pulled a bunch of radishes and popped them into her basket. Tony was probably brooding over the difference between his income and the money that Pamela was used to. If he'd only come and tell her, she wouldn't have to be subtle about telling him that girls today didn't care if a man had only a little money if they loved each other.

She'd said as much to him. She had not said that she thought any girl would be a fool not to see that Tony was a darling, a man to trust and one that a girl would have a harder time NOT falling in love with than—

It was a good thing she'd told herself just where she and Tony stood months ago or she would have found it easy to fall in love with him herself.

The bells on the church rang for 7 o'clock and Barbara hurried back into the house. Tony was coming for her at nine and she had lots of things to do in the meantime.

She made coffee and filled the thermos bottle, packed it neatly in the big hamper. Then she packed the bathing things, her own new shell-pink sharkskin suit and robe and Sonny's little trunks and sweater. And then, amazingly, it was after eight and she had to help Mable Cronin plan meals for the week for the eight young occupants of the nursery.

Eight, she thought happily: $80 more in the bank this week! Twenty dollars for Mable—who insisted upon an arrangement of taking only a small percentage in place of the generous salary Barbara offered her—and $15 for groceries. There would be $45 left and that would be nearly the amount of the last $50 she owed Pamela.

Tony came for her at nine, and the procession moved out to his car. Barbara went first, carrying cushions and blankets, which she stowed in back with the portable phonograph and camera; then came Tony with Sonny astride his shoulders, whooping merrily and brandishing long-handled forks. Under his arms Tony carried the lunch hamper, grate, newspapers and books.

"How do I look?" he demanded half way to the car, and loud enough for the whole Perkins family on its way to church to hear. "Like a dependable family man?"

Barbara had to laugh. He looked like nothing else, with his hair tousled by her young son. He made, she thought, a very good one.

"Where are we going?" she asked him when they took the road that led to the hills.

"Hudson's lake, a very special spot, selected for a very special reason. Lots of trees, clean water, good beach and no one is likely to disturb us."

"Sounds lovely but untrue. Suppose you're needed for an emergency call?"

"I left word at the house—reluctantly. I'll have to be badly needed and called for if anybody wants to find me today."

They rode in contented silence for a long time.

"Barbie," Tony said abruptly, "I—er—had, as I believe I said, a special reason for wanting to get you away from other people today."

"Pamela!" a voice said in her mind, and her heart skipped a beat. He was going to tell her at last. She decided in that moment that every woman in the world was a little bit jealous of every other woman lucky enough to win the love of a man like Tony. She wondered if her pleasant companionate relationship with him would continue when he became engaged to Pamela. Of course, it couldn't. She anticipated loneliness, suddenly and sharply.

"Something to tell me?" she said.

A grin appeared briefly on his face, disappeared and was replaced by a stern scowl and he concentrated his gaze on the road ahead. He swallowed and said, "I was going to wait until later. . . . But now that I find myself rehearsing speeches while I'm shaving I've decided to take a chance."

"What is it?" she asked quietly when the silence that followed his last words threatened to become permanent.

She felt her listening figure relax. She'd rather hear it when the day was over, since it might be their last day together.

It was, as Tony said, "A made-to-order day," a heavenly day. There was no cloud in the sky to warn them that a storm of another kind was approaching them with every turn of the wheels of Pamela Kilman's car now following the route they had taken from town.

The morning had wings. They swam and sunned themselves and built castles and fortresses in the sand. They ate their lunch under the cool shade of a big tree.

After lunch, Tony read "Dr. Doolittle" to Sonny and Barbara lay on her stomach listening to the pleasant flow of his voice.

Sonny crept into Tony's arms and soon his head drooped and his long lashes lay on his curving baby cheeks. Tony's voice grew softer and he rubbed his cheek on the head close to it. Tenderness became a lump in Barbara's throat.

The doctor put Sonny down on a blanket, straightening his limbs, pillowing his head on a folded coat.

They had brought a backgammon board and they sat cross-legged on the grass, playing on the sand, watching the sunlight making dapple shadows on the green grass.

Barbara nodded. "Yes," she murmured, sending one of HIS counters back to begin again. "You?"

"So happy I wish this day could go on forever. Just like this."

"Isn't it too bad that nothing ever does? A place like this in February. . . ."

"Hey, Robinson Crusoe!"

The grinding of brakes was harsh in the stillness. The brakes of Pamela's car, and there was Pamela shouting at them.

"I might have known it!" Tony said between his teeth.

Uncle Sam Says: Eat More Fish

BROILED FILLET OF HADDOCK. For meatless days

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
Wide World Food Editor

While the war has limited the supply and boosted the price of some fish, there are still many varieties of this health-building food to tempt the palate and please the purse.

With more meatless days in prospect, fish should take over part of the vital job of providing proteins and minerals to keep you fighting-fit. And remember that fish appeal depends largely upon its food partners.

HERB BUTTER gives the finishing touch to broiled haddock. This fish is a thrifty buy, it comes in fillets and steaks for easy eating and it does not take long to cook. Wash about a pound of fillets, to serve four. Brush with melted butter, bacon fat or salad oil and broil in a small amount of fat until brown. Spread with the herb butter, cook a minute and serve at once. Make the butter this way: Mix together four tablespoons butter, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon paprika, two-thirds teaspoon each finely chopped parsley, chopped chives (or onions) and basil, two tablespoons chopped olives and one tablespoon lemon juice. Beat with a fork.

COD FISH is versatile, filled with

Broiled Fillet Of Haddock

Use one package (about a pound) of frozen fillet of haddock. Separate fillets and spread with softened butter and sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Place on well greased broiler and broil about fifteen minutes, turning to brown on both sides. Serves two to three.

Fresh fish fillets or steak can be broiled this same way.

You can make an edible garnish by cutting stars from sliced boiled potatoes and pan-frying until brown.

minerals and vitamins and is on the low-cost side. It can be broiled or browned in a small amount of fat and then "smothered" in a tart sauce.

HALIBUT or other sleek fish served with a corn bread makes a wholesome meal. A spiced beet relish or grapefruit jellied salad blends well with any fish.

Try OYSTER STUFFING IN BLUE FISH for an ultra main dish. Mashed potatoes or Spanish rice tie in with this special. Or have escalloped corn and green peppers. Lemon quarters or thin slices should be served with all fish to bring out best flavors.

BROWNED HADDOCK, sole or halibut is a real dish when served with Belmont Sauce. Melt three tablespoons butter and add four tablespoons flour, stir in two cups milk, one-third teaspoon salt and one-fourth teaspoon each paprika and celery seed. Cook slowly and stir constantly until thick and creamy. When ready to serve beat in an egg and one tablespoon lemon juice. Pass at once with baked browned broiled or fried fish.

TARTAR SAUCE goes with fish steak. Mix together one-half cup mayonnaise, one tablespoon each chopped parsley, one-fourth teaspoon each minced chives or onions and salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika and one teaspoon lemon juice. Beat until fluffy, chill and serve.

Ham Balls

Ham balls are new. Make them from ground, cured ham and ground pork, bread crumbs, eggs, and milk to moisten; bake in a slow oven for one hour, basting with a mixture of brown sugar and dilute vinegar seasoned with dry mustard.

Meat Loaf Seasoner

To season your next meat loaf, add a pinch of poultry seasoning and see what a lift it gives.

Glycerine is used in the preparation of surgical dressings, in many antiseptics, in the vital tannic acid burn jellies, and, more recently, in the preparation of infection-preventing, life-saving sulfonamide ointments and other preparations.

Panned Vegetables

To pan vegetables melt two tablespoons of fat for each quart of prepared vegetables in a heavy, flat pan. Add the vegetable and cover to steam. Cook until tender, but not mushy.

Since 1921 India has had fiscal autonomy—the power to impose tariffs upon goods from Britain as well as from non-British sources.

Pork Liver

Pork liver is high in minerals and vitamins but low on the price ladder. Give it slow-motion cooking with a liquid such as water, tomato juice, or dilute sour cream.

Custard Hint

Custards can be enhanced by a bay leaf boiled in the milk.

Temperature for Yeast

Too much heat kills yeast. When dissolving yeast for baking, be sure the liquid is lukewarm, about 80 degrees F.

Sandwich Ideas

Vary your workers' sandwiches with these suggestions: (1) mix two chopped hard-cooked eggs, three tablespoons chili sauce, and one tablespoon mayonnaise with one-half cup coarsely ground dried beef; (2) spread thin slices of corned beef with mashed liver sausage and put between well-buttered rye bread.

Six-Day Week Urged In Hard Coal Mines

BOSTON, Sept. 11 (AP) — The anthracite coal industry can produce enough coal for all needs, but it must lengthen its work week to six days to insure a "reasonable factor of safety in supply," Brigadier General Bruce P. Disque, assistant director of the Office of the Solid Fuels co-ordinator said here. Disque, in a speech prepared for a conference of New England fuel administrators and fuel dealers, said his office had recommended the six-day week to the industry partly because absence of miners from work was occurring at a rate that would mean an annual production loss of about 1,000,000 tons. At the same time, Disque said that as much as 2,000,000 additional tons of anthracite would be supplied to homeowners who have converted their fuel oil heaters if they order the coal before Sept. 15. After that, he added, "the extra supply will be in doubt."

Frostburg Elks Lodge Begins Mortgage Burning Ceremony

Elk Members Are In Struggle Too, Sullivan Says

Lodges Will Repeat Efforts of Last War, Exalted Ruler Declares

FROSTBURG, Sept. 11.—The 600-odd members of the B. P. O. Elks will "do no less in aiding in the present conflict than the order did in the First World war," E. Mark Sullivan, grand exalted ruler, Boston, Mass., declared this evening in opening the mortgage burning ceremony of Frostburg Lodge B. P. O. Elks No. 470.

Sullivan delivered his address to approximately 200 persons attending the banquet in his honor in Gunter hotel, which was followed by burning the mortgage on the Elks home in the lodge rooms.

Pays Tribute to Lodge

Sullivan paid tribute to the local lodge for its fine work in conducting "refresher courses" for young men who are interested in enlisting in the United States Aviation Corps. Over 10,000 aspiring air officers have enrolled for these "refresher courses" throughout the country. Sullivan said, and over 3,000 have already completed the course and are now aviation training centers or are bombing enemy objectives.

Many more men have been admitted to other branches of the service, because of the courses, being conducted by the Elks, the exalted ruler said, adding that the grand lodge is now launching an even greater campaign to aid the navy's force.

The order of Elks is perhaps unique among American organizations, Sullivan said, because it emphasizes the essential qualities which make all men children of God and the happy circumstance which makes citizens of the greatest nation in all history, the United States of America.

This, Sullivan explained, is necessary because the "melting pot," as America is often referred to, needs the melting fires of fellowship, such as is encouraged by the B. P. O. Elks. Without fellowship and the understanding of our fellow men, he said, America can not become a "melting pot" but only a "mixing bowl."

Elks Have Destiny
"Broad human understanding and love of men have given the order of Elks a destiny among our countrymen," Sullivan told his audience, and into the crucible of this order has been deposited divine elements of the race, religion and section, and they are fast fused into one great homogeneous body, the nucleus of an evolving American race, destined to influence the world of tomorrow," he added.

America is the treasure house of priceless ideals, Sullivan said, and Americans, members of the Elks treasure this common tradition and hold it as a thing most sacred. The Elks creed, he said, may and should become the creed of every American citizen. It is this:

The Elks' Creed
"We believe in God, our Divine Father, and in obedience to the government of the United States as the instrument of His law among us, and in the law of justice among men made perfect in the practice of Christian charity."

The creed rejects the false emphasis placed upon nationalism and race by the pagan philosophy of the past and former days, Sullivan said, and, Nazism and Fascism—and even Communism—out of which comes the present world holocaust, but the outgrowth of the false philosophies taught in the universities of yesterday. They have emphasized race and creed—mere arguments by which one man is distinguished from another.

"As Elks we pledge full allegiance and every ounce of our strength in support of our Commander in Chief, the president of the United States," he said.

Central Enrolls 655

Arthur P. Smith announced today that 655 pupils are enrolled in Central school from grades one to twelve. Compared to last year there is a decrease of thirty-four.

The enrollment for the 1942 school term is as follows: Grades one to six, boys eighty-eight, girls 100, total 188; grades seven and eight, boys ninety, girls ninety-seven, total 187; grade nine, boys twenty-nine, girls fifty-two, total eighty-one; grades ten to twelve, boys seventy-two, girls 127, total 199. The enrollment in 1941 was 689.

Fifty-five students have enrolled in the senior class this year. Last year seventy-four were enrolled.

Narvell Nine Injured

Narvell Nine, fifteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Narvell Nine, Jackson street, is a patient in Miners hospital suffering with a fracture of the right leg above the knee. He received the injury Sunday afternoon when he was swinging on grape vines in Indian Hollow, near Connor's mine on Jackson mountain.

Three companions, Charles Nine, Raymond Nine and James Bogie, witnessed the accident and they said that Narvell struck against the trunk of a large tree and fell to the ground.

Henry Connor, who was near by, administered first aid until an ambulance arrived.

Former Principal Of Meyersdale High School Dies

Coronary Thrombosis Is Fatal to Prof. William H. Kretzman

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Sept. 11.—Prof. William H. Kretzman, 73, educator, churchman and philanthropist, for many years a resident of Meyersdale, during which time he served seventeen years as supervising principal of the schools of this borough, died suddenly Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Bruce Hewitt Rhodenizer, near Glencoe, where he had gone to inspect a nearby timber tract. Coroner Philip C. Dosch attributed death to coronary thrombosis.

At the conclusion of his seventeenth term as principal of the schools here he was elected to the position of county superintendent of schools in which office he served from 1929 until 1934, inclusive, when he retired from active duty and continued to reside in Somerset.

As a youth he attended school in Summit township and several state normal schools, graduating from California State Normal school in 1894. He also graduated from Franklin and Marshall college in 1901, and in 1905 he received his A. M. degree from that institution. He later did post graduate work at State college and the University of Pittsburgh.

During his residence in Meyersdale he was a member of Amity Reformed church, serving as elder, chorister, superintendent of the Sunday school, teacher of the Bible class, and when he moved to Somerset he transferred his membership to St. Paul's Reformed church. He was frequently a delegate to both the Synod and Classis, and in 1936 he served as delegate to the National Synod, which met in Fort Wayne, Ind. He was a trustee of Franklin and Marshall college; from 1937 until death he was president of the laymen of Pittsburgh Synod.

Mr. Kretzman was for many years a member of both the National and State Educational Association. He also served as a director of the People's National Bank of Somerset, was a member of the Odd Fellows, the Masonic fraternity, (Continued on Page 12, Col. 7)

Training School To Be Conducted In Meyersdale
The Ministerial Association of Meyersdale is sponsoring a community training school of Christian Education to be held from September 21 to October 1. The school will meet each evening for two and one-half hours, Monday through Friday, allowing each student to learn two credits on the standard leadership training course.

The Rev. J. E. Gindlesperger has been named dean of the school. Courses and faculty have been selected and are as follows:

"The Outlook for Christian Missions," taught by Dr. R. M. Dunkelberger; "My Christian Beliefs," by the Rev. Nelson C. Brown; "Christian Evangelism," by the Rev. Kenneth Ashman; "The Church Through the Centuries," by the Rev. John B. Warman; "Understanding Our Youth," taught jointly by Dr. Guy N. Hartman and Prof. Charles P. Saylor; "The Church's Opportunity in Adult Education," by the Rev. J. A. Joyce; "Dramatics in the Local Church," by Mrs. DeWitt L. Miller; "The Administration of Children's Work in the Small School," by Mrs. J. E. McCartney; "The Bible Speaks to Our Generation," by the Rev. DeWitt L. Miller; "The Meaning of Church Membership," by the Rev. J. E. Gindlesperger.

These courses are being offered for the men, women and young people of Meyersdale and surrounding communities who are interested in a better understanding of the Bible, the Christian faith, and Christian methods and programs as they relate to a more effective Christian witness and service.

Decision Favoring Gelwicks Estate Is Given by Supreme Court of W. Va.

Stockholders of Keyser Bank Must Share Losses of J. D. Gelwicks

KEYSER, W. Va., Sept. 11.—The Supreme Court of West Virginia Tuesday refused a rehearing in the case of Pauline Gelwicks, executrix, against H. C. Homan, et al, and closed the case which has been pending in West Virginia courts since 1933 in favor of Miss Gelwicks.

The case, the first of its kind ever to be tried in West Virginia, resulted from the failure of the First National Bank of Keyser when stockholders refused to share in the losses of the late J. D. Gelwicks, Keyser, in whose name stock shares had been placed until they could be disposed of, when the bank increased its capital stock.

During testimony given in the case, Miss Gelwicks explained that her father, along with six other stockholders of the bank, three of whom have since died, increased the capital stock of the bank and after all but sixty shares of the stock were disposed of the remaining shares were placed in the name of her father to be sold later. Before the shares were disposed of the bank failed when President Roosevelt declared a bank holiday in 1933.

Miss Gelwicks testified that her father was required to pay the note which he had delivered to the bank. She asked the court to force the directors of the bank to share in her father's losses on the theory that the directors had entered into a (Continued on Page 12, Col. 3)

Frostburg Legion Plans Erection of Service Shaft

Would Erect Monument to Men in Armed Forces at Beall High

FROSTBURG, Sept. 11.—Farrady Post, No. 24, American Legion, will meet Monday evening to install officers and considering the proposal to have a service shaft erected on the grounds of Beall high school on which will be inscribed the names of all Frostburg men and women who are serving with the armed forces of the United States in the present World war.

The matter of erecting such a shaft was brought to the attention of the mayor and city commissioners Monday evening by a member of the American Legion and all the city officials expressed approval of the project and offered to co-operate to the fullest extent.

The promoters of the Service Shaft movement have recommended that an effort be made to enlist the co-operation of the county school board in selecting a proper site. The assistance of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Junior Chamber of Commerce will also be solicited.

The tentative plan is to construct the shaft of wood and place it on an eminence where it would be in plain view from Route 40. It is to be of a design in harmony with the architecture of Frostburg's high school and placed in such a position as to enhance the beauty of the school grounds after they have been improved.

The mayor and city council agreed to call a special meeting during the coming week to hear a discussion of the project. The date of the meeting will be announced following the American Legion meeting Monday evening.

Protest License Fee

Following the receipt of a petition from nine Frostburg Beauty Shop owners, Monday evening, protesting against the provision of city ordinance No. 379, charging beauty shops an annual license fee of $10, the mayor and city commissioners decided to reduce the charge.

The petitioners were Hazel Deffenbaugh, Hazel Krauss, Gertrude Beal, Vanda Kirby, Melissa Price, Ruby Griffith, Mae Emery, Adriel Grose and Anthony Bollino.

After it was explained that the annual fee in Cumberland is only $5, council ordered City Attorney William S. Jenkins to amend the ordinance, reducing the fee to $5. It was also decided to include in the amendment a provision exempting barbers from a city license fee. This exemption followed a protest from the barbers that they have nothing to sell except their service, which, they claimed, compared with services rendered by doctors, lawyers, dentists and others.

City Clerk Alex G. Close reported that many retail establishments had paid the annual license fee. The deadline for payment, he said, is October 1.

Brief Mention

The Tri-Towns Municipal Band will give a concert Sunday night on the lawn of St. James Episcopal church, at 8 o'clock.

A service flag is to be dedicated in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service. The American Legion, the Legion Auxiliary Unit and the drum corps are planning to attend the service.

Pay Bank Loans

The City Council cleared up all bank loans following the monthly meeting of that body last night, repaying the sum of $3,140 to the Garrett and First National banks in Oakland. The receipts for August totaled $6,272.33 and of this amount $486.96 was for water and $5,643.75 for taxes.

Expenditures totaled $5,176.31 including the repayment of the bank loans and $275 for council salaries. (Continued on Page 12, Col. 4)

Mark Liquidation Of Debt Incurred In Buying Home

Celebration Will Continue Today and Sunday; Open House Social Planned

FROSTBURG, Sept. 11.—Members of Frostburg Lodge No. 470, B. P. O. Elks began a three day celebration this evening with a banquet and mortgage burning ceremony marking the liquidation of a debt of $26,000 incurred when they purchased the Willson home, on East Main street in 1939.

Burn Mortgage

The mortgage burning was conducted in the lodge room with each of the four chair officers, R. E. Lemmert, exalted ruler, Chester Stewart, leading knight, Clarence P. Rephann, loyal knight and Frank R. Keene, lecturing knight placing ignited papers in a metal urn to set fire to the mortgage.

E. Mark Sullivan, grand exalted ruler, Boston, who delivered the principal speech at the banquet, held in Gunter hotel, prior to the mortgage burning attended the ceremony and congratulated members on the united effort they have exhibited in clearing the lodge of the debt.

The new home was purchased February 14, 1939, from Mrs. Lawrence D. Willson after a purchase permit was approved by the grand lodge at the 1938 convention, held in St. Louis, Mo. Frank R. Keene, a delegate to the convention, presented the application.

Members of the committee who conducted the purchase included John L. Casey, lodge treasurer, who was chairman, Thomas Davis, Charles Dillon, U. B. Edwards, John Durst, John Keller and Samuel Walker and Keene.

The home was occupied on New Year's day, 1940, after extensive improvements were made. The first social function was held February 16, 1940, when the lodge marked the anniversary of the national order of Elks.

Celebration To Continue

The celebration will continue in the new home tomorrow and Sunday with numerous parties and open house socials planned.

The burning of the mortgage was delayed about twenty minutes when members of the lodge and guests attending the banquet in Gunter hotel were caught in the blackout and prevented from reaching the lodge rooms on time.

Guests attending the opening ceremony from other lodges include, Judge Joseph D. Mesh, Harry A. Shaffer, Lester A. Tylor, and E. Lester Mobey, past district representative, all of Hagerstown; Dr. Albert Cook, state president, and Lester Deneen, exalted ruler of Cumberland Lodge, all of Cumberland.

School Open

With an enrollment of 1,046 pupils the Oakland high and elementary and the parochial schools opened Tuesday for the nine-months' term of instruction.

Oakland high school had an enrollment of 574, twelve less than last year when 586 enrolled, according to Foster D. Bittle. Bittle estimated that the number would be increased by about fifty before the end of September.

The high school enrollment was divided as follows: seniors; boys fifty-two, girls fifty-three, total 105; juniors; boys fifty-eight, girls seventy-three, total 131; sophomores; boys seventy-four, girls eighty-seven, total 161; freshmen; boys 100, girls seventy-seven, total 177; total boys 284, total girls 298, grand total 574.

At the Oakland elementary school there was a total enrollment of 397, seventeen less than last year at the same time, according to Merle D. Franz, principal.

The enrollment by grades is as follows: grade 7, sixty-three; grade 6, thirty-eight; grade 5, fifty-eight; grade 4, fifty; grade 3, sixty-two; grade 2, fifty-eight; grade 1, sixty-eight.

The parochial school opened this week with an enrollment of seventy-five. This year for the first time the school is operating its own bus and is bringing pupils from Hutton, Deer Park, and surrounding communities, it was announced by the teacher in charge.

Classes were in full swing today in all three schools and a number of school activities other than classroom work will get under way at the first of next week in the high and elementary schools.

Dr. Myers Says Child Smokers Are a Problem

Health Argument Believed Strongest --- Sports Have Good Effect

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

I smoke. A pipeful lasts for about one column. I often wish I didn't. It costs money. It's a dirty habit, and to some persons one's smoking is offensive. Life insurance companies advise those they insure not to smoke, giving this advice in terms of dollars and cents to their firms. Medical journals don't carry advertisements of tobacco.

It was the quiet, loving influence of my mother, I think, that kept me from smoking in my childhood and teens. Of course, smoking was not so common a practice among teen age youngsters in those days as now. The youth who escapes smoking in his or her teens today must have been powerfully influenced by some persons or persons.

Health authorities agree that smoking is most harmful during the child's growth and athletes who observe the rules of training don't smoke. Indeed, sports have generally had good effect in keeping some youths from smoking.

Religious appeals also are responsible for a certain percentage of non-smoking youth and adults. We must admire those persons who because of religious teachings or obligations, avoid tobacco and the like, yet, by and large, these influences do not seem to be very great.

Health Appeal

Also we must admit that parental example is a factor, that the father and mother who don't smoke are in a more favorable position to win their child not to smoke. However, we need to recognize that our folkways are such that the use of tobacco is generally considered as belonging only to those grown-up or nearly so. To the child of 10 the parent can say that smoking is for big people with about as much effect as to say to the tot of two that pickles are not for little children. Of course, we can only guess what might happen in the future should our folkways approve smoking generally by those as young as 10 or 12.

The health argument, I believe, is the strongest. Practically all of our parents, with this argument in mind, strongly wish our children would not smoke at all or not until they have fully grown. Yet most of us will do very well indeed if we prevail on our children not to smoke until they are grown.

Cost of Smoking

I don't believe we have emphasized the argument of cost enough. Many a youth, especially if he has learned to operate on an allowance or budget, would not start smoking if he had carefully counted the actual money cost for cigarettes. Right now, many youths patriotically eager to buy war stamps and bonds would, I believe, respond to this cost argument. Many more who want to grow fit to be the best possible soldiers by and by also might respond to the health appeal.

Let no parent suppose he can keep his child from smoking merely by commanding him not to smoke.

Urges Moderation

Having done your very best to keep your son or daughter from smoking, suppose this child begins to smoke. Your next step is to induce him or her to smoke in moderation. I hope you don't cause the child to smoke clandestinely, abuse him, or act childishly in any way about his smoking. Better to have your child love you and smoke than to despise you and smoke anyway.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. To a youth beginning to earn what would you recommend as his wise early expenditures?

A. On dental care and check-up by a doctor, systematic investment in more war savings bonds, for good books and high grade magazines, and a night course, if available, otherwise a correspondence course.

joint adventure, as shown by minutes of the directors' meeting, and although the stock was not in their names they should be equally liable to Gelwicks for any loss suffered by him.

In the initial suit, filed in circuit court, a decision was given in favor of the directors but the supreme court reversed the decision and named the three surviving directors liable to the estate of J. B. Gelwicks for equal shares as suffered by Gelwicks.

The decision handed down early in the month was appealed but the court refused to rehear the case.

Army Offers Visits

Col. Robert S. Harsh of the regional general's office of the Fifth United States Army Corps, Columbus, Ohio, was in the county yesterday conferring with civilian defense organization heads relating particularly to blackouts.

Col. Harsh stated that arrangements have been made whereby Mineral, Hampshire, Grant, Pendleton and Tucker counties will be joined to the Third Army Corps, Baltimore, and will be governed by warning signals from that area. Counties east; Morgan, Berkeley and Jefferson will be attached to the Winchester area.

Draftees To Leave

A contingent of twenty-one Mineral county men who have passed all examinations will leave Keyser, Monday at 1:30 p. m. for Fort Hayes, O., where they will be inducted into the United States Army.

Russell Davis McDowell has been appointed special corporal for the men who are:

Three others of this group were transferred to other local boards: Adolph Henry Oltman, Forrest Foster Cox and William Lenwood Seaman.

This group brings Mineral county's draftees to 805 draftees in the service besides a large number of enlistments.

Baker To Speak

Charles G. Baker, Morgantown, Republican candidate for Congress, Second district, will spend Saturday in Mineral county. He will be in Keyser part of the day and then go to Fort Ashby where a lot sale is scheduled for the afternoon.

Mrs. Nutter Dies

Mrs. Margaret Ellen Nutter, 68, wife of Parker Nutter, Keyser, died in Fairmont General hospital yesterday morning. The body was brought to Keyser this morning. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Mrs. Nutter was the daughter of Joseph and Sadie Gilbert Eversole and was born in Great Cacapon, W. Va.

Surviving are her husband, Parker Nutter, four sons, Leo Nutter, Elk Garden; Luther Nutter and Joseph Nutter, Keyser; and Albert Nutter, United States Army, three daughters, Mrs. Howard Warnick and Mrs. Harry Cooper, Farmington, W. Va., and Mrs. Albert Runner, Ida May, W. Va.

The audit of H. L. Jones and J. M. Jarboe, of the clerk-collector's books was accepted. The auditors declared the books were neatly kept and that there was careful attention to detail, and added that thanks were due Arthur Lawton for his help and courtesy.

Council decided to improve Green street between Sixth and Eighth after M. R. Maroney and C. L. Briner, Jr. had appeared before the organization. The council also granted the request of the Board of Education to erect a new frame warehouse on Eighth street, thirty by 100 feet.

Army Salvage Earns $1,000 a Month

CHANDLER, ARIZ. (AP)—Garbage, glass, wood and scraps aren't scraps at Williams Field—they are part of a $1,000 a month salvage business.

Everything from bits of brass on light bulbs to metal buttons is saved, and either used on the post, or sold at a profit.

The money made each month is turned over to the Post Finance Officer, who sends it in to the United States Treasury.

The garbage alone is sold for about $200 a month, while the grease and tallow and scrap meat from the mess halls are sold for $85 a month.

A hundred dollars is realized each month from the sale of tin cans. Half a carload of smashed down tin is sold each month.

Everything Is Even . . . The Steno Is Even Mad

MARION, O. (AP)—A lad, tarrying to play, lost $52 he was to deposit in a bank for a relative.

A stenographer found the money. A city employee, happening by, reached in his pocket to feel for $52 he had saved to pay a bill. It wasn't there.

He claimed the find and gave the stenographer a $1 reward from it. The next morning he found his original $52 in another pocket. He returned the other money to the stenographer. Meanwhile a search made by the boy's relatives came to the stenographer's attention.

They got their money back. Everybody is happy but the stenographer who returned the $1 reward, so the city worker could pay his $52 bill.

Restaurant Offers Food Saving Plan

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11 (AP)—Lick the platter clean in George Mardikian's restaurants and you'll get a ten percent refund on your dinner bill—in war stamps.

Mardikian, widely known restaurateur, asserting twenty-five to fifty percent of food ordered at a safe was wasted, said he was making the offer "to defer the day of food rationing."

Portrays Life of Cohan

"Yankee Doodle Dandy," "It's a Grand Old Flag," "Over There" and other top tunes of the period are vividly brought back to life in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," which opened at the Strand theater yesterday.

Portraying the life of George M. Cohan, author of the tunes, and one of America's better known stage producers, there is never a dull moment throughout the film. And the lead roles seem particularly suited to the acting of James Cagney who is more than ably supported by Walter Huston, playing the role of Cohan's father.

The picture opens with Cohan being called to Washington by President Roosevelt to receive a Congressional Medal of Honor for his activities. Cohan then begins telling the president the story of his life, beginning with his birth and tracing through the history of the famous Four Cohans, top billed vaudeville team of the time.

Cohan eventually is forced to leave the team because of his conceit but later forms a partnership with Sam Harris to start one of America's best known stage producing combinations.

CAGNEY RETURNS TO HOOFING

of Arizona State college, you were elected "Zing Girl" of the year. As admirers of yours we wish you the best of luck. It might interest you to know that "Honky Tonk," in which you and Clark Gable starred, was selected the favorite picture of the male students."

Lana again co-stars with Gable in "Somewhere I'll Find You," which is now showing at the Maryland theater.

Producer Insists On Action in Westerns

Producer Scott R. Dunlap is one picture maker who believes that in his western action melodramas, the Rough Riders series, the latest of which, "Forbidden Trails," with Buck Jones, Tim McCoy, Raymond Hatton and "Silver," is now showing on the screen of the Embassy theater, there should be action and more action and no interference from troubadours and guitars.

In many of the recent westerns the fast moving plot is suddenly interrupted to let the hero warble a few musical notes to his ladylove or to the moon. "It looks artificial," is the opinion of Producer Dunlap, who prefers to have his western heroes men of deeds and not men of song.

Accordingly, in "Forbidden Trails" there is only fast-moving action from the opening moment of the picture to the end. Buck Jones befriends a mine owner who is being cheated out of valuable ore; Tim McCoy appears disguised as a faro dealer; and Raymond Hatton as a mule driver.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Mary Eleanor Perry vs. Roland James Perry

No. 16,818 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff a vinculo matrimonii from the defendant.

The bill states that they were married on the 26th day of October, 1917, and that the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff on the 28th day of October, 1937, and declared his intention to live with her no longer and that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for more than eighteen months last past prior to the bringing of this suit, and that such separation is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

The bill further states that one child was born unto this marriage; namely, Robert Lee Perry, aged four, and the plaintiff asks for the custody of said child. The bill further states that the plaintiff has been a resident of the State of Maryland for more than one year prior to the bringing of this action and the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and the plaintiff asks for an Order of Publication against the defendant and for general relief.

ROBERT JACKSON, Clerk.

Martin Predicts Republican Gains

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11 (AP) — House Minority Leader Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican National committee, expresses confidence that the Republican party would make "very substantial gains" in both the House and Senate in the November elections.

Specifically, he declared that he was "particularly pleased" at the prospects that the big states of Massachusetts, California, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio would send predominantly Republican delegations to Congress. "And don't mistake me," Martin said, "that's not all we're claiming."

SLEDGE BEATS RAPIER
MOST FINE bidding bears the same relationship to ordinary bidding that a rapier does to a sledge hammer. Ordinarily the neatly tuned-up calling of the expert produces an accuracy, in choice of declaration and height of it, that makes the effort of the slumber-banger crude by comparison. But there are times when the brute force kind of wild gamble, by some so-called "natural" player, will produce a profit. Those rare occasions make such bunglers think their methods are great, for they very conveniently forget the countless times when more skilled performers out-score them.

Having learned about his partner's carefully revealed six-card diamond suit and his four spades, also about his general power, through first the jump in diamonds and second his reverse bid of spades at the level of four, West, at table 1, was ready for a grand slam try if his partner held all three missing aces. If East had responded to the Blackwood with 5-Spades to show all the aces, West would have asked about kings with 5-No Trumps; if East disclosed only two, West would have signed off at 6-No Trumps. If three, he would have bid 7-No Trumps. But, when East showed only two of the missing three aces, West was satisfied with an immediate small slam bid. Unfortunately for him, North was the leader and chose a spade. That made it impossible for him to take more than 11 tricks, as you can easily see.

At Table 2, where East gambled on 5-No Trumps, with no heart protection except his own deduction that West "might have hearts stopped," an unbid small slam was made after South led the spade 5 to the 10. The club K was scored, a heart led, and South could only take the A of that suit. East getting all the rest, no matter what South then did.

Your Week-End Lesson
Do you understand the principle on which a "match-point" game among a lot of teams-of-four is based? Do you know how the scoring decides which team wins the match point on any particular hand? Do you know which is better for your team between two sets of developments? One of them is to have the fine results by your pair and the fine ones by your team-mates come on the same deals, with your good and ordinary hands mixed up a bit. The other is to have your poor hands and your team-mates' poor hands come on the same deals, with your good and ordinary ones in assorted fashion.

Fifth Blackout For Cumberland Called 'Blackest'

City and County Are in Total Darkness Thirty Minutes

Best of the Five Held to Date, Ingram Says; Kelly Plant Co-operates

Last night was one of the blackest on record in Cumberland. The occasion was Allegheny county's first unannounced blackout and the response on the part of citizens was commendable. Piedmont and Ridgeley, Allegheny county's West Virginia neighbors, also co-operated 100 per cent to make the thirty-minute test a success.

Lasts Thirty Minutes
Sirens and whistles gave the blackout signal in Cumberland at 9:15 p. m. and at 9:45 p. m. the all-clear was sounded. In Frostburg the fire siren was the signal to black out at 9:20 p. m., and twenty-five minutes later another blast of the siren was notification to light up.

Vincent P. Ingram, civilian defense director, viewed the blacked out city from atop the city hall and expressed satisfaction that Cumberland people are well educated about blackouts after having had four previous tests.

"It was remarkable," Ingram declared. "Street lights were extinguished in record time, business establishments co-operated and the various civilian defense groups assembled in jig time to carry out their part in the program."

Blackest of Blackouts
"It's the blackest blackout Cumberland has seen since the first of the five was held late last December," the civilian defense director said.

"Last night's blackout was the most remarkable in view of the fact that it was the first in which citizens failed to receive any advance warning."

Ingram reported that the heads of all civilian defense services with the exception of the fire chief were on duty at the control center in city hall to which point eleven "incidents" were telephoned by air raid wardens of the various city zones and services were dispatched to the places feeling the worst effects of the "air raid."

Kelly Co-operates
Officials of the Kelly-Springfield Engineering Company reported that the Kelly plant, a local war industry, held its first total blackout. The plant was in darkness for twenty minutes.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad also co-operated 100 per cent to make the blackout a success. The Queen City station and hotel and other railroad properties extinguished their lights at the given signal and remained dark until the all-clear.

Lawmakers' Error Plays Part in Court Decision

Driver's Licenses Restored As Result of Unusual Change in Statute

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan issued an opinion in circuit court yesterday, which will compel the commissioner of motor vehicles to restore the automobile operators license of Watson E. Bennett.

The decision in Bennett's favor can be attributed to the dual element of time and a careless piece of work in the Maryland General Assembly of 1939, when it revised an act passed in 1937.

In 1937 the legislators got together and amended a motor vehicle law by inserting this paragraph: "Insolvency proceedings shall not relieve an operator or chauffeur from the obligation to satisfy judgment before having his license renewed or his certificate of registration restored."

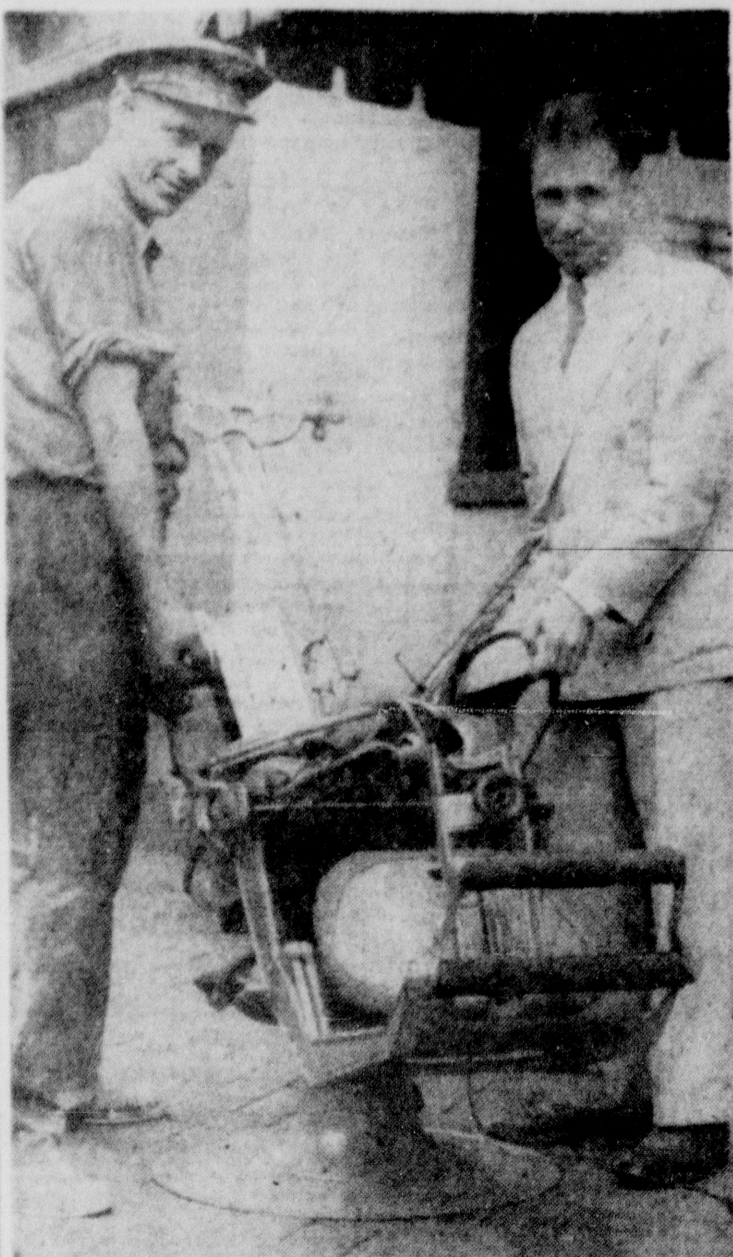

Which means that when you lose your driver's license for failure to pay off a judgment for damages, you can't get it back by going bankrupt. You could do that before 1937.

But when the legislators got together in 1939 they went over this act of 1937 again and, for an undisclosed reason, left out this pertinent paragraph. It was not until they met again in 1941 that it was restored to the corpus of regulations governing motor vehicles and their operation in Maryland. It became effective again June 1, 1941.

But meanwhile Bennett had gone bankrupt on April 18, 1941, from a judgment for $2,274.95 returned April 24, 1939, in favor of Glenmore Rice. Judge Sloan's opinion rules that Bennett's declaration of insolvency, coinciding with the era of the "dropped paragraph" in Annapolis, removes the grounds for preempting his driver's license.

Judge Sloan's opinion observes that since Bennett's action is directed at compelling a public official to perform his duty it should have been taken in the form of a mandamus petition and directs its removal from the Court of Equity for declaratory purposes.

Edward J. Ryan, attorney, represented Bennett.

GOES FOR SCRAP—Dr. Sidney W. Zwick, 16 Greene street, left yesterday for duty with the United States Army dental corps at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. Before he left he decided to give away an old dental chair which he had in his office. The chair contains quite a bit of metals and Dr. Zwick said he hoped it would help give the Axis a painful time instead of relieving pain for which it was built. Dr. Zwick has practiced in this city for six years. Shown on the right is the dentist while R. W. Brown, driver for a trucking company, is on the left.

Man Protests Spending Blackout In Shelter of Local "Saloon"

Declares Air Raid Warden "Shooed" Him into a "Dive"

When last night's blackout started with the wailing of sirens, traffic, both vehicular and pedestrian, came to a stop and all persons either sought shelter in the nearest building or else were ordered to do so by air raid wardens and city police officers.

This part of the blackout procedure caused one man to wax vehement over being ordered to seek shelter in what he described as a "saloon."

"I don't mind going into a saloon myself, but suppose I had my daughter or wife along," he asked. "I think they should have other places in which to shelter people, not such 'dives' as I was ordered into."

The man in question was non-plussed when asked if he thought air raid wardens should march people around to either churches or other places which they thought were suitable for their moral and spiritual welfare.

Another man overhearing the "beef" of the irate citizen said, "You should be glad you're in a country where going into a 'saloon' is the only inconvenience."

A two-year-old boy became frightened when the sirens sounded and Baltimore street was plunged into darkness. The child's mother and father and two other persons were huddled in a doorway between Liberty and Centre streets after having parked their car when the sirens sounded.

The boy sobbed and could not be comforted even by his parents. An air raid warden suggested they return to their car as that might help. It worked. The child soon went to sleep.

One man, who is what the gentlemen call a "night owl," looked up at the sky and remarked, "That's the first time I've seen the stars shine so brightly in my life." The Milky Way and other celestial bodies were twinkling in all their glory last night and they shed a soft glow which provided the only light which could be seen on Baltimore street.

Air raid wardens on Baltimore street meant business during last night's blackout. One motorist left his car parked with both headlights and rear lights showing. Two wardens tried to turn off the lights but the car was locked. Undaunted, they took out penknives and unscrewed bolts from the lights, removed the glass lenses and turned the bulbs to douse the lights.

A large crowd of people who were in the Woodmen hall on Baltimore street took the sudden blackout in good spirits. Shortly after the lights went off air raid wardens on the street could hear the strains of "There's a Long Long Trail" coming from the second floor ballroom.

Practically all the downtown cocktail lounges and bars were caught with their blinds down. In other blackouts candles were used (Continued on Page 8, Col. 2)

Auxiliary Police Unit Increased By 58 Men in City

Contingent Now Numbers 220; To Receive Instructions from Eyerman

Cumberland's auxiliary police unit, organized under civilian defense authority by Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman, now numbers 220 men, the chief said yesterday.

A contingent of fifty-eight additional auxiliary officers have completed training and arm bands and identification cards will be distributed this afternoon and Sunday.

At the same time, Chief Eyerman will explain to the volunteer police officers just what their duties are and the limits of their authority.

Sessions will be held at 2 and 8 p. m., tomorrow, and at 2 p. m., Sunday, for the convenience of shift workers who have volunteered for duty. The 58 comprise the last group enrolled and the force now totals 220 men.

Chief Eyerman plans to keep a "reserve unit" of twenty men at headquarters, ready to answer emergency calls in areas where the regular force may be inadequate.

Explaining the authority of the auxiliary officers, the chief cited it as their first duty to protect life, limb and property; to keep cool and prevent panic among excited people in event of a real raid; direct persons to shelter; prevent looting and tampering with cars; direct traffic, if necessary.

"You will not please everyone," he advises the officers. "No matter what you do, some will find fault, but you will find most people grateful for any service rendered, so do the best you can."

Recruiting Trips

Technical Sgt. Clarence Biehn will visit Oakland and Kitzmiller tomorrow to interview prospective recruits for the army. He will be at Oakland from 10 a. m. to noon and at Kitzmiller from 4 to 5 p. m.

Robert E. Barnard Named Manager Of OPA Office

Daniel F. McMullen Takes Over as Chairman of Rationing Board

Appointment of Robert Edward Barnard, 417 Washington street, as field office manager of the Cumberland branch of the Maryland Office of Price Administration, with headquarters on the fifth floor of the Liberty Trust building, was announced yesterday by Leo H. McCormick, state director.

Barnard has served as chairman of the Cumberland War Price and Rationing Board since January 6, 1942, and has resigned this position in order to assume his new duties, which will take all his time.

A native of Lonaconing, "Bob" as he is more familiarly known by his friends, was in the insurance business with the firm of Barnes and Barnard prior to his connection with the OPA.

Served Overseas
Educated in the public schools of Westernport and Winona college, Indiana, Barnard was in the Maryland National Guard in the first World war and served overseas with the One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry. He enlisted as a private and was commissioned as a second lieutenant in France.

A brother of the late Fuller Barnard, one-time state's attorney of Allegheny county, the new OPA field office manager is married and has two children, Robert E. Barnard, Jr., and Frederick Roberts Barnard. Mrs. Barnard was Miss Elizabeth H. Roberts.

John L. McLaren, who came here as temporary manager when the OPA office was established in June, will return to the head office in Baltimore.

McMullen Is Chairman
McCormick also announced that Daniel F. McMullen, present member of the Cumberland War Price and Rationing Board, has been designated as chairman to take Barnard's place. McMullen was recently elected Maryland department commander of the American Legion.

Other members of the rationing board are Harold W. Smith, secretary of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, and Harry A. Porch, general chairman of the grievance committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad system.

Life in Merchant Marine Is Great, Joe Buskey Says

Local Ballplayer Back from First Round Trip with Merchant Convoy

Back from his first round trip across the ocean as a member of the merchant marine, Joseph H. Buskey, well known Cumberland baseball player, is here for several days renewing old acquaintances.

The ex-minor league shortstop and third baseman, who went up to the "big show" twice for trials with the St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies, told his friends that in his trips across the Atlantic he sailed on Liberty ships used to convey merchant vessels to European ports.

"It's a great life," Buskey remarked in discussing his work as a seaman in the present conflict.

"We didn't see any Axis U-boats going or returning but one of the undersea craft picked off one of the merchant ships in the convoy on our way to Europe."

"It's a life of fun and then all turns to seriousness when there is a sign of a submarine lurking nearby," Buskey concluded.

HEADS OPA—Robert Edward Barnard, 47, of this city has been appointed field office manager of the Cumberland branch of the Maryland Office of Price Administration, by Leo H. McCormick, state director, and will take over his new duties immediately in the OPA office, fifth floor, Liberty Trust building.

Barnard has been chairman of the local War Price and Rationing Board since January 6, 1942 He will be succeeded in the latter position by Daniel F. McMullen, of this city, a member of the board and newly elected Maryland department commander of the American Legion.

John L. McLaren, temporary manager of the local OPA office, will return to the head office in Baltimore.

Effective at Once
This change in the New Passenger Automobile Rationing Regulations is made by Amendment No. 15, now in effect.

The same amendment also makes a number of other technical revisions, as follows:

1. Unrestricted sale of new cars by inductees into the armed forces of the United States will be permitted hereafter only when it becomes certain that the seller actually will enter the service. Previously, an inductee with a 1942 model car could sell it, even to a buyer who could not qualify for a certificate under the rationing regulations, as soon as he received notice to report for induction. If he was rejected on final physical examination and had sold his car meanwhile, he would have done so under a dispensation intended only for those who actually enter the service.

Sale Is Restricted
2. Hereafter, members of the armed forces who acquire new automobiles after they have entered the service will be permitted to transfer them subsequently only to certificate holders or to members of their own families. Before this change was made, they could sell to anyone without restriction. Now, however, with a probability of increased ownership of cars by military personnel as a result of special eligibility recently extended to them, it is considered desirable to restrict resale, lest too many automobiles be released in this way from the rationing regulations.

3. When a business changes hands, new passenger automobiles that are a part of the bulk assets may be transferred along with the other assets, without certificate, if they are for use in operation of the business and were principally used in the same service by the former owner. Heretofore, when a business was sold of even changed its form of organization it was necessary for the new owner to get a rationing certificate for transfer of any new cars among the assets.

No Certificate Required
4. An insurance company that recovers a stolen car to which it has acquired title by reason of payment of indemnity, may transfer the car back to the insured without certificate, if the insured has not acquired or been authorized to acquire a new car meanwhile. This is a transfer without certificate that was not heretofore permitted under the regulations.

5. In checking the tally sheets of District 27, Gilmore, the board discovered that Roulette received thirty-six votes and not ninety-six votes as was noted in the unofficial tabulation. Miller's total of fifty-six votes remained unchanged in that district. Who committed the error? No one knows. But those sixty votes lopped off Roulette's total probably turned victory into defeat for him.

With squirrel hunting season about to open in Allegheny county, license clerks in the office of the circuit clerk here are kept busy.

Around the court house there are always numerous stories told about some of the hunters who annually come for their licenses to hunt or fish.

Yesterday, one court house employee told two which seem worth repeating. If you've heard them, well here they are anyway.

It seems two sportsmen from up around Lonaconing got to the court house just at closing time, the day before hunting season opened. The late Lloyd Shaffer was then clerk of

Driver Is Fined $25 For Failing To Stop After an Accident

Lester Garfield Moreland, 100 Roberts street, was fined $25 and costs yesterday morning in trial magistrates' court on a charge of failing to stop after an accident.

Officer Guy Williams said Moreland was driving on Maryland avenue, Wednesday night, and struck the parked car of Jack L. Cook.

Moreland did not stop. Cook was sitting on his porch at the time and shouted at the driver. He ran out into the street and took Moreland's license number.

Scrap Metal Drive To Be Held Here Sunday Afternoon

Every Resident Urged To Collect Material for Making War Goods

Tomorrow afternoon, over 300 volunteers will tour the city in about fifty donated trucks, to collect every available piece of scrap metal.

The collection campaign in Cumberland is a part of a nation wide effort to obtain all the scrap iron, steel, aluminum, brass, copper, lead and rubber which might be salvaged.

Scouts Will Help
W. Donald Smith, chairman of the local collection committee said last night that every householder and business house in the city and surrounding area should begin today to assemble every piece of metal or rubber they can do without and have it ready to put on the curb by Sunday noon.

Boy Scouts will make a tour of the city today to remind people of the collection and ask their cooperation, Smith said. "Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the importance of this campaign as a part of the war effort," he stated.

"Because industry needs metal to make more guns, planes, tanks, ammunition and other material for the fighting forces of the nation."

Collection Starts At 1 P. M.
At 1 p. m. Sunday workers and trucks will assemble at the A. & P. Super Market parking lot and then spread out to all sections of the city to gather in the scrap.

Already 42 men have responded to radio appeals for volunteer helpers and both the AFOL and the CIO have agreed to furnish as many men as needed. Service clubs will also furnish assistance. Gloves will be provided and the Red Cross will have a first aid station at the scales.

French Sensabaugh will be in charge of the collection south of Williams street while Martin M. Corrigan will have charge north of Williams street, east of Wills creek, including LaVale to Allegheny Grove. The West Side, including the Creashtown area, will be supervised by Charles F. Heller.

Quota Fixed for County
A quota of 7,000 tons or 14,000,000 pounds has been fixed for Allegheny county in the four-month period ending December 31. This means 161 pounds per person or an average of 640 pounds per family. Much of this scrap will come from industry but the success of the drive depends upon collection made from homes, officials say.

Firms which already have donated the use of trucks are the Cumberland Contracting Co., Cement Products Co., George F. Hazelwood Co., City of Cumberland, C. W. Sirbaugh, Cumberland Cement and Supply Co., Meigs Brothers, Pen Mar Brick and Tile Co., Howell Coal Co., A. W. Klavuhn and J. L. Wolfe.

The scrap will be sold to junk dealers and the proceeds divided equally between the United Service Organizations and the Red Cross.

Social Center At St. Patrick's Opens Tonight

Hot Lunch Program To Start Monday; Convent Will Receive Visitors

Redecorated in many contrasting colors, St. Patrick's social center, located in the basement of St. Patrick's school, North Centre street, will hold its grand opening this evening from 8 to 11 p. m.

Pennants containing the names and colors of the six Cumberland and Ridgeley public and parochial high schools have been painted on the posts and many other changes have been effected during the summer months.

Old-fashioned dancing will be a special feature on opening night and an orchestra will play for trippers of the light fantastic.

Boys and girls of high school age and thereabouts and their parents are invited to attend.

Sister Marie, principal of Central high school, announced yesterday that the hot lunch program for children of St. Patrick's school and Central high will be opened Monday, September 14. The cafeteria has been redecorated in blue and white and will be in charge of Mrs. Howard M. Hoyle with Mrs. Isabella Thomas as first assistant. An average of 200 children daily were fed at the cafeteria during the 1941-42 term.

St. Patrick's convent will be open for inspection Sunday following each mass and in the afternoon from 2 to 4:30 p. m. This is offered as an opportunity for all to inspect the convent, see the improvements, and meet the superior and all the sisters.

Zone 5 Wardens Meet Sunday

All air raid wardens of Zone 5 are requested to meet Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in St. Mary's church basement. Auxiliary policemen of the zone are also asked to attend.

Ralph Lindamood, zone warden, will preside at the session.
